Canadians Storm Hill 70, Key to the French Coal City, and British Now Dominate Region.

HAIG LAUNCHES ANOTHER HEAVY SMASH

British Front in France and Belgium, Aug. 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Hill 70, the famous German stronghold northwest of the French mining city of Lens which dominates the city and the Loos salient, was captured this morning by the Canadian forces.

The British also pushed their lines into the northwestern environs of Lens, in a semi-circle around the eastern side of hill 70. The British attack was made on a 4,000 yard front which had an extreme depth of 1,500 yards.

Beginning at a point just above Hugo wood the new British positions now run southeast and beyond Hill 70 towards Lens. The line then bends

WASHINGTON SURE PLEA IS FUTILE

Benedict's Proposal Has Not Yet Reached the State Department.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Pope Benedict's peace proposal had not been received today by the government, but Secretary Lansing said the summary, as published by The Associated Press, was substantially in accord with the official outline he has before him.

There is no change in the first impression that the allies certainly will reject the proposal in its present form and probably refuse to consider it at all.

CREW OF U-BOAT RISKS CAPTURE TO STEAL A PIG

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 15.—A live pig, part of the stores of the Norwegian ship Sierra, sunk by a German submarine off the Azores on June 29, was made a "prisoner of war" and transferred "squawling and kicking" from his pen on the deck of the Sierra to the hold of the U-boat, said members of the Sierra's crew who arrived here today on a Spanish ship.

The men said the U-boat risked destruction from an approaching destroyer in order to get the pig safely on board their own craft.

It is desired that the boys be given a rousing welcome and every citizen who possibly can is asked to be at the interurban station when the car arrives.

UNITED STATES TROOPS MARCH LONDON STREET

London, Aug. 15.—American troops marched through London today. They were reviewed by Ambassador Page and later by King George at Buckingham palace. Great crowds lined the streets, which were decorated profusely with American and British flags.

Enthusiasm was shown everywhere. The Americans were cheered by civilians, by soldiers on their way to the front, and by wounded men. The troops were escorted by guard bands.

Petrograd, Aug. 15.—Former Emperor Nicholas and his family are being transferred to another point. They were removed in an ordinary train instead of in the gorgeous imperial train on which Nicholas was brought to the palace.

The former emperor appeared to be very much depressed. Former Empress Alexandra seemed to be pleased at the prospect of a change.

FRANCE LIKELY TO SEIZE WINE CROP, IS REPORT

Paris, Aug. 15.—Confiscation of the wine crop is contemplated by Maurice Violette, minister of subsistence as the result of complaints from growers and dealers that speculation of a few who buy up in advance is solely responsible for prevailing high prices.

With two headliners which should attract thousands of people, Fort Wayne's first big Potato Patch Patriots' celebration began at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Foster park. Backers of the demonstration were heartened by the definite announcement by telephone from Winchester that Hon. James E. HIGH HONOR IS BESTOWED UPON CULVER SCHOOL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—Culver Military academy of Culver, Ind., is listed among the honor schools for the year 1917 because of the excellent military standing of its student battalions as announced today by the war department.

GREAT CAMP NOW CLOSED

First School for Officers' Reserve Corps at Fort Harrison Ends.

COMMISSIONED MEN HAVE ALL DEPARTED

Camp Will Be Re-Opened in Two Weeks for Second Class of Men.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 15.—The first training camp for students desiring to become members of the officers' reserve corps held at Fort Benjamin Harrison formally ended today.

The camp was practically deserted by the students, although there are several thousand soldiers and officers still in training at the fort.

Preparations are being completed rapidly for the second reserve officers' camp to open August 27.

The hundreds of students at the first camp who were given commissions made practically all their preparations for leaving yesterday. Those who were unsuccessful left the camp several days ago.

Most of the new officers have a leave of twelve days in which to visit relatives and friends and make necessary business arrangements.

POPE BENEDICT'S PEACE NOTE WORK OF HIS OWN HAND

Rome, Tuesday, Aug. 14.—The peace proposals of Pope Benedict were written entirely in his own handwriting. The pope consulted Cardinal Gaspari, papal secretary of state; Archbishop Cerretti, assistant papal secretary of state; and Monsignor Tedeschini, papal under secretary of state, in formulating the documents.

Archbishop Cerretti, who arrived recently from America, where he stopped on his journey from Australia, is now supervising translation of the communication into English.

The Giornale d'Italia says the papal appeal is the most impressive and concrete ever addressed to the belligerents, giving them the greatest hope on Washington, Aug. 15.—Government purchase of enough of the 1917 wheat crop to stabilize the prices in the United States was forecast in the formation today of a $50,000,000 corporation by the food administration. The intention is to take over the entire harvest if necessary to maintain fair prices.

The corporation will make all allied purchases of wheat and flour and thus will stabilize prices to the allies. Through this arrangement, too, it hopes to secure itself against any possible loss.

The food administration will open agencies at all the principal wheat

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—Army officers who will organize the national army divisions face the task of making the best possible use of the men selected for military duty by the local boards.

They will come from all walks and conditions of life. Among them will be highly trained individuals, specialists in particular lines and efficient mechanics. It is the intention of the war department to get the maximum advantage for the nation out of each man's special qualifications and his previous occupation will be carefully considered in assigning him to duty.

To accomplish this, it was pointed out today that descriptive lists of all

PLEAS DEMAND SOME NOTICE

Evidence is Given That Many Exemption Claims Will Be Rejected.

COUNTY BOARD TO EXAMINE MORE MEN

Believed That Sufficient Number Has Been Secured in City Districts.

Exemption pleas demand the next attention of the various selection boards. Boards in districts 2 and 3 finished the work of examining conscripts called on second summons Tuesday.

There are a number of exemption claims that are attracting more than passing notice. Records of the various boards show that there are a surprising number of married men who have asked to be exempted on the ground of having dependent wives whose marriages have taken place since the registration and several since the drawing of numbers and notification to appear. There are five such cases in one district. One conscript who claimed exemption because of a dependent wife was married Aug. 7, another was married on July 18, others on June 24 and June 7. There is not much likelihood of these men being exempted.

Finish Examination. The board in district 3 finished its work of examining men at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon while the board in the second district finished at noon Tuesday. All the boards with the exception of the county district are of the opinion that enough men have been examined to secure the quota of men.

The county board will resume the work of examining men who were summoned on the second call, Monday morning. In the meantime the board has busied itself with passing on exemption claims and examining the affidavits which must accompany the claims.

They Forget. Two pitiful cases have been cited in one of the districts of the city. Men who are married and have three and four children each, forgot to file ads

EXHIBIT CAR TO LEAVE.

The Oklahoma land exhibit car, at Calhoun street and Nickel Plate tracks, will be here only a few days longer, as several other cities are awaiting its arrival according to schedule planned. The business done here has been beyond all precedent the best of any city visited, and to those interested it would not be amiss to say that the population of the U. S. is increasing daily, but land space and acreage remains the same. The management of the exhibit speak highly of the reception accorded them here.

ADDED MORE WOMEN TO SECTION FORCE

A Gang of Five Take Employment at Valparaiso With the Pennsy.

The experiments at Liverpool with women as section hands, inaugurated by the Pennsylvania two months ago, are proving the practicability of the plan and other female section gangs will be established wherever and whenever good women apply for that kind of work. The Liverpool gang now has eight women and they are performing most all kinds of labor usually falling to the lot of section hands. It is said that were it possible to use them, twenty-five or thirty women could be secured at Liverpool, but they will not go away from home and the company has all it can handle at that point. Yesterday five women began work on the tracks at Valparaiso and the number will probably be increased to eight or ten before the close of the week. These women have been placed in a "gang" by themselves and are engaged in weeding tracks and other light work. They wear overalls of a special pattern designed and adopted by the company. It is claimed from a maintenance of way official this morning that the doors of an open everywhere to women able and willing to work on the road as track laborers and all applications will be considered.

BANQUET ARRANGEMENTS CONTINUE.

Pennsy Veteran Employees Preparing for Annual Gathering.

More interest than anticipated, because of the war, is developing in the coming annual banquet at Valparaiso of the "Veteran Employees' association of the Pennsylvania," which takes place Saturday, October 6. Because of the war and the very busy times in every department of the Pennsylvania, it was feared the interest in the banquet would wane. The announcement of the date and the intention to hold the meeting had a reviving effect, however, and interest is growing daily. There are now 400 members who will attend the banquet and this number is likely to be increased to upwards of 500. The proposition to pass up the banquet this year was not submitted to the members at it was thought might be the case. It would have been voted down had it come up, one of the members said. The Nickel Plate has decided to not hold a veterans' banquet this year, because of the war.

WILL QUIT THE PENNSY.

J. W. Carpenter Purchases a Hotel at Connersville.

J. W. Carpenter has tendered his resignation as manager of the Pennsylvania line's restaurant in the Baker street station. He has purchased the Palace hotel in Connersville and will assume charge of it as soon as the Pennsylvania company releases him. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter have resided in Fort Wayne six years, having charge of the Pennsylvania line's restaurant in the old depot first and later in the new station. They have many friends in Fort Wayne, both in and out of railway circles, who will be sorry to hear that they are about to move away.

FOREMAN RESIGNS.

Some surprise was created at the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning by the announcement that William A. McGrath, an assistant foreman, had resigned his position, effective as soon as the shop management could release him. Mr. McGrath does not state his intentions as to future employment, but it is understood he has accepted a position with another concern. He came here two or three years ago from some road in Illinois, and was soon advanced in the ranks.

SPECIAL FOR CULVER BOYS.

The summer term of school at the Culver Military academy will close Thursday, August 23, and the Pennsylvania will handle a special train from the academy to Chicago for the accommodation of the students. The number this year is not quite up to the standard, because, it is thought, of the war and the demand for the services of the boys in various industries and business lines.

HENRY FERTIG RECOVERING.

Henry Fertig came down from Plymouth yesterday to see his railway associates and report progress towards recovery. Mr. Fertig was operated upon at the St. Joseph hospital for appendicitis several weeks ago and when able to leave the hospital, went to the home of his parents at Plymouth to remain until he is able to report for duty. He is a G. R. & I. passenger brakeman.

TAKES JOB AT DUDLO'S.

C. W. Simmers resigned as a helper at the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, where he was employed for over fourteen years. He has accepted employment at the Dudlo works and will go to work there tomorrow.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

James Laughlin, of the Pennsylvania planing mills, is off duty on account of sickness.

Otto Rosemer, assistant file clerk at the Pennsylvania motive power offices, was unable to report for work this morning on account of sickness.

C. Doehman resumed work at the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning, after an absence on account of sickness.

Louis J. Setter, of the Pennsylvania tank shop, and his wife, and entertaining William Werker, of Chicago, life-long friend. Mr. Werker is a traveling salesman for a wholesale tobacco house.

Machinist O. D. Shookman is detained at home by the serious illness of his mother. He is employed in the Pennsylvania air brake room.

Machinist John O. Bryant resumed work at the Pennsylvania shops this morning. He was sick three or four days.

John Weidner, stenographer in the office of General Foreman W. B. Madara, of the Pennsylvania machine shop, has gone to Rome City to spend the balance of the week.

Neal Bailey and Henry Galland resumed their duties at the Pennsylvania machine shop this morning. They were off yesterday on account of the funeral of the late Earnest Struthen. Springmaker A. P. Mueller and Tool Dresser E. Rhein, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, are taking a day off to look after some private business.

Mrs. S. S. Deahl, wife of Conductor Deahl, of the Nickel Plate, and her children are spending a week or two with her parents and other relatives at Roanoke.

A. Meier, a freight car builder at the east car shops, had the first finger of his left hand crushed when his hand was caught between two pieces of timber he was handling.

F. A. Austin, new agent of the N. Y. C. is busy moving his family and household goods down from Jerome, Mich., their former home. He succeeded A. P. Phillips, who has been advanced to traveling passenger agent.

Miss Flora Bloemker, of the Wayne Knitting mill; Miss Laura Limbach, daughter of the Pennsylvania shopman; Miss Edith Volkening and Miss Collie Miller, of the General Electric works, composed a happy group in the excursion party to the Falls yesterday. They will also visit at Toledo and Cleveland.

A change at the Pennsylvania shops which is a promotion for the two young fellows affected, was the appointment of E. Kamm, a helper under instructions, to take the place of A. Collie in the machine shop, and the appointment of Victor Colney to a similar position to take the place of J. Grable in the same shop.

F. A. Austin, agent of the N. Y. C. and L. E. & W., has been advised by the passenger department that the L. E. & W. will duplicate the excursion to Fort Wayne, Ind., on the 19th. The service given on the last excursion to the training camp will prevail on the next. The special train will leave the north depot at 6 o'clock and reach the camp at 9:40.

Y. M. C. A. COMMITTEE WILL MEET FRIDAY

Decision on Building Question is Expected at That Time.

The immediate future of the Fort Wayne Y. M. C. A. will be practically determined at a meeting of the building committee at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, when it will be definitely decided whether the building is to be started at the present time or whether there is to be a delay.

The first annual picnic planned by Y. M. C. A. campaign workers scheduled to have taken place at Lake Maxinkuckee Aug. 25, has been indefinitely postponed because of uncertain railroad facilities. Owing to expected troop movements at that time the railroad refuse to give any guarantee of furnishing accommodations for a special excursion.

On that piano next door that's hopped on every time you try to rest. Break in some time when they're away and camouflage it to look like an umbrella stand, or a fireplace.

Too bad, though, there isn't any way to camouflage the warbling of that oh, ho, oh, ha, ha, hee, hee, damsel who thinks she is a Mrs. Caruso.

And that bugle-practicing kid across the street. The best way is to camouflage the bugle with an ax.

The auto that's always kicking up a fuss and is always being repaired and tried out when you're trying to get full weight on your sleep at night and in the morning. Sneak out some midnight, drag it in the alley and camouflage it to look like a pile of garbage, then push it next to the ash can so the garbage chauffeur will haul it away with the rest of the rubbish.

Wonders can be worked with the camouflage art.

HOW I LEARNED TO BE A U. S. AVIATOR

Member of Uncle Sam's Flying Squadrons Describes His Sensations.

BY SERGEANT GEORGE DODGE, (United States Aviation School, Mincola, N. Y.)

Before war was declared, I was a Cornell freshman, with no more idea of enlisting than any other college student had at that time.

But as soon as it became certain that we had to fight Germany, I began looking round to see what branch of the service I would rather do my bit in.

It was a cinch from the start that I would go in for aviation. I had been building model airplanes for years, and besides that I was driven by the sense of adventure that is in every fellow of my age—I am less than 20 now—and I knew that all the big adventures of this war would come to the flyers.

Besides, I knew that in the air service you kept your individuality and did not become simply a cog in a big machine, as in some other branches of the service. It's up to you in aviation; but if you do make good, you have the satisfaction of knowing that you did the stunt all by yourself, and there is some chance of the world's knowing it, too. Everybody has heard of Capt. Guynemer and Capt. Ball, the great French and English flyers, but who ever heard of any other officers of their rank in any of the armies?

So I put in my application to learn to fly for Uncle Sam—the second college student's application in the United States, I am told.

I had no fear of the ordinary physical examination; but I will admit I was nervous over the special tests that they give aviation recruits. I had heard all sorts of wild stories about these tests—that they fired revolvers at you to test your nerve, threw cold water on you, stuck needles in your flesh, and all sorts of other stunts that sound like a college fraternity's hazing.

I went into the examining surgeon's office with about the same feelings that I would go to my own shooting. I was so wrought up by these stories. But I soon managed to collect my nerve when I saw the business-like way in which the surgeon went about his work.

He seemed to mark my body off in sections and give each section such a thorough examination that I am sure if I had anything wrong with me it would have been discovered. But this was just a starter; what they were really after was my eyes and my ears, and with my ears I include my balancing apparatus, which I have since learned are the little semi-circular canals that are a part of the ear structure.

They stuck me up on a high chair and squirted first hot and then cold water into my ear. I found out later that in this test they watched my eyes to see whether they acted normally, turning toward the ear that was being irrigated when warm water was used and away from it when the water was cold.

Then they put me on a thing like a piano stool and whirled me around until I was dizzy, and watched to see which way I would fall when the stool stopped turning. If I fell away from the direction of rotation, I was all right.

Next they took off my shoes and made me walk back and forth blindfolded, to see whether my balance and sense of direction was good.

It was certainly a weird performance, but nothing like the rough stuff that I expected them to try on me.

I couldn't understand what all these blindfolded tests were for, but since I have been up in the clouds where you can't see anything, I can understand that all these tests really were a miniature reproduction of just what an aviator has to go through whenever he gets into a cloud or has to fly in the dark.

Advertising in The Sentinel Lowers the Cost of Selling

This is not a time for haphazard business methods.

Clear thinking must convince you that advertising lowers the cost of selling and consequently it lowers the cost of a product to the ultimate consumer.

Advertising is the greatest price reducer of business. It brings increased demand and thus allows for economies of large production and broad scale buying. This decreases proportionate overhead. Advertising is equally effective for distributing or retailing. There is no honest product whose selling cost and hence its selling price can not be reduced by advertising of some kind. And there are very few propositions that can not be profitably merchandised through The Sentinel advertising.

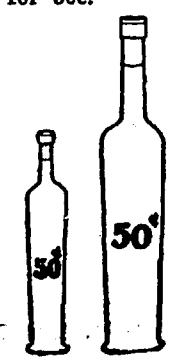

The Sentinel realizes the waste of carrying advertising that does not bring profitable results. This is not a time for careless business. If The Sentinel believes your business can be helped through its advertising columns, every effort will be made through the soliciting force to show you the merits of Sentinel publicity. On the other hand if The Sentinel is convinced that its advertising will not pay you, The Sentinel will tell you so just as frankly.

Sentinel expert advertising men are at your service and ready at all times to help you solve your merchandising problems. Do not hesitate to call for one of them.

KILLING THE RATS

TELLS WHY WE HAVE VINELESS POTATOES

Rev. L. W. Spayd, of St. Joe, Says He Has Had Potatoes Without Vines.

Rev. L. W. Spayd, of the Christian church of St. Joe, writes to The Sentinel and says he can explain why there is such a thing as vineless potatoes. He states he saw the article about the tubers without vines in The Sentinel on July 6 and has the following explanation to give:

"To me the vineless potato is no longer a mystery. I grew several square rods of them in 1914. Planted in March, we ate them by May 15; then teased our neighbors that we were smart enough to beat them to new home grown potatoes by a month. Of course, 'all of them were from Missouri and had to be shown,' but we had the goods, and all of us alike queried much as to the cause of their growing thus.

"It was some time before I found a man who could explain the mystery. He was an old farmer and had seen them several times. He said: 'You planted potatoes every eye of which had put forth sprouts one or more times before planting, all of which sprouts you had rubbed off from the potatoes before planting them.' Sure enough, I had. Having no cellar I kept my potatoes in a warm room up stairs. As a drought had prematurely ripened them, the year before, they put forth vigorous sprouts in January, which I rubbed off. Again I rubbed off all sprouts from them put forth in February. I planted three square rods with them in March. As only now and then a weak, spindling vine came up, I set the patch to potatoes, after digging out the vineless potatoes in May."

"I again had some vineless potatoes this year. Last year's dry spell dried up my vines by July 10, this ripening my Early Ohio's prematurely again. I sprouted these once before planting, most of them twice—hence had a few vineless potatoes. If every eye in the potato you plant has twice put forth sprouts and the sprouts have twice been rubbed off from the potato, it has lost its power to send forth more sprouts after planting. It can only send out rootlets on which it will grow potatoes, perhaps never larger than hen eggs. If every eye in a potato has put forth vigorous sprouts once, and had them removed before planting, I doubt that you will even then have other than vineless potatoes.

"The fact is, we seldom rub off sprouts from every eye of a potato when sprouting them. You will find eyes left in a potato, after a first and second sprouting, which have not yet put forth sprouts, but which do so after planting them.

"This fact accounts why we so seldom have vineless potatoes. I have now had them twice under similar circumstances; once from Rural New Yorkers, once from Early Ohio. In each case, a long dry spell prematurely ripened the potatoes. In each case, having no cellar, I kept them in warm rooms to keep them from freezing. In each case I sprouted them twice before planting. But as more of them had unsprouted eyes left when planted, I had fewer vineless potatoes this year.

"With these facts in hand, as a basis for experimentation, let others make further tests."

OTHER WAYS TO APPLY CAMOUFLAGE.

You might camouflage your war garden invisible to keep the bugs and neighbor's chickens from holding a pow wow on it.

Wouldn't be a bad idea for gents to camouflage their eyes so they'll look wide open for Sunday morning's in church.

Camouflage that raise by chucking it in the watch pocket and don't let the wife get hep.

Also, husbands, the trousers could be camouflaged to look like they're shy pockets.

Why not camouflage women's furs invisible so the sight of them won't make the heat seem 40 degrees more.

Let's get all the panhandlers and camouflage 'em invisible, then shoo 'em to the tall timber.

Ought to be some way for small boys to camouflage their ears clean looking so as to elude mothers from twisting them off when applying the wash rag.

CHINA IN THE WAR.

The seventeenth nation to cast in its lot with the allies of the entente, China has declared war against Germany and Austria-Hungary. The decision of China to become belligerent is no surprise. It has been pending and expected for some time and comes belated mainly because it furnished an issue upon which the republican government split and opened the doors to the coup that resulted in the brief restoration of the Manchu dynasty.

China may not prove to be a great war asset to the entente. At the outset she becomes at least an added financial liability upon the powers grouped against Germany and her allies. She has no army worth speaking of; no navy that can appreciably strengthen the nations with whom she fights. In man power she is almost illimitable such as her man power is, though there is likely to be no great haste and no very sincere desire to draw upon that undeveloped, untrained and doubtful resource of the great oriental republic. Of two other resources China can furnish abundance. She can provide labor, as already she has done to some extent in Europe, and she can provide food. Of her America will require neither and in respect of labor will not have it at any incurred risk of political and industrial disturbance.

Properly trained and disciplined, there are some elements in China out of which good fighting material can be made. Yet there does not appear to be any present need or any prospect of need for it. With the United States entering fresh into the conflict and some hope that Russia's vast resources of men will again be available, there does not disclose itself any necessity for bringing the Chinese into the European theater of war. There are some reasons that are powerful if not insuperable why Chinese fighting forces should be kept out of the war in Europe, though they might be with much less objection employed in Western Asia against the Turks.

China's declaration of belligerency is most immediately notable for the spectacular element it adds to the world conflict in joining half of the continent of Asia and one-fourth of the world's population to the mighty coalition of free peoples against the two great surviving autocracies on the planet. The marshaled strength of Germany, able still to hold out against a coalition so vast and potential, amazes and may well-nigh affright. A power so organized, developed and keyed to the single business of war and directed and driven by ambitions against which it conceives no considerations of morals or humanity must be allowed to stand, itself furnishes the abundant reason for trying to make the world safe for democracy. How far China can help in or is desirable as an aid to the establishment of this security raises a question.

MAKING AN END OF WASTE.

The food grains and certain food roots will "keep." Wheat, barley, rye and Indian maize, properly stored, will preserve their sweetness and quality for long periods. Potatoes, with good care, can be made to last from the gathering time through winter and spring to the maturity of early varieties. Cold storage makes possible the keeping in natural state of some fruits—mainly apples—and some vegetables. But most fruits and many vegetables must be kept by preservative processes.

It is probably that from a fourth to a half of the quickly perishable fruits and vegetables grown in this country go to waste because they are not immediately in demand and no care is taken to preserve them. This means the wastage of a prodigious quantity of good food. To conserve these vast resources that now mean so much that is vital to the country under stress of war the women of America have been implored by the government and by various patriotic agencies unofficially co-operating with the government to do what lies in their power to prevent this year the annually recurring waste of inconceivable quantities of foodstuffs. The food control law under the administration of Director Hoover will do much in the matter of regulating supplies and forestalling rapacities as well as enforcing conservation so far as the great staple storage crops are concerned, but statute law and legal regulations cannot go far in this country to compel anybody to preserve fruit and vegetables. The law can to some extent prevent waste of foodstuffs by limiting supplies, as has been done in Germany, but it cannot do much against that passive but not less wanton waste that ensues from neglect and failure to preserve the immense surpluses of a great variety of perishable food crops.

There must be voluntary service by the women to make sure that there shall be an end to waste and in its place an increase of stored food by preserving what can be saved in that way. The women of the United States are to be registered in a great army against waste. They will be asked to sign cards giving their pledge to conserve perishable food crops and to practice sensible economies in their kitchens. Conservation of food cannot be made a surety without employment of system and it is to establish system that the women's pledge cards are distributed for signature. These cards will give the newly-created food department a fairly accurate index of the food resources of the country and will enable the department to carry on its work with greater intelligence and effect.

The women of the country have it in their power to create one of the nation's greatest elements of defensive preparedness and at the same time to inject into the domestic life of the whole people a now scandalously absent virtue of economy and abhorrence of waste. This people needs the lesson that enforced practice of economy and conservation will bring into its domestic life and the mobilization of the women to serve their country in war will do much to found permanently the morals of frugality and saving.

THE NEW PEACE PROPOSAL.

The peace proposals put forth by Pope Benedict have not made a convincing impression in allied capitals. The suspicion has been spontaneous and almost unanimous that most probably Austria and possibly Germany furnished the inspiration of the effort to bring the world's calamitous strife to an ending. Notwithstanding this distrust, it is not unlikely that something of use may come out of the pontiff's proposals. It gives the Germanic alliance an opportunity to state its aims and indicate tentative terms, which if brought about would be more than has been made definite at any time heretofore when the subject of peace has had brief innings in the world's notice and the belligerents' discussions.

"No annexations, no indemnities," the peace slogan that has had more vogue than acceptance for some months, seems to be the boiled down expression of what the holy father has in mind as the bases for the peace he so strongly urges and the hope of which most surely he cherishes above all other concerns at this time. Restorations in general, as proposed by the pope, mean of course Belgium, among other things, but it is hardly conceivable that a restored Belgium that is not also a repaired and in some degree a recompensed Belgium can be put forward as an example of a peace with justice. However, that is a detail.

The question that overshadows, so far as America is concerned, is the future security of democracy in the world and some founded and dependable guarantee against another outbreak of war madness when there shall have been recuperation from this strife's prostrations. The United States is in this war for the assertion and maintenance of its rights and the security of its future—nothing else, and, it must be hoped, nothing less. The status quo ante would leave America pretty well out of the settlement. We are not throwing in our millions of men and our billions of treasure for any result of that texture and color.

Judgment will have to be put in abeyance as to the pope's proposals until they are clarified by something coming from the Germanic powers. Meanwhile the peace prospect is not yet luminous.

Governor Goodrich is getting nearer and nearer to the sticking point of resolution to have the Indiana legislature in session and the coal barons before that august tribunal for hearing and judgment. It ought not to take much time to dispose of that, if the purpose is to get coal abundantly and reasonably to industry and hearthstone in this state.

Several hundred new generals have been created and a proportionate contingent of new colonels will have to come on. But the war's end will disclose more colonels several to one than ever will waste a trench or smell a gas attack. We raise 'em here; they're born, not made or commissioned.

Food Boss Hoover is getting about his work in a slow and settled fashion that argues more for solid results than for spectacular display and the usual prices.

The beauty about the income tax is that you have to have the income before they can take part of it away from you. The joy of immunity has its limitations.

FOOD CONTROL BOARDS IN EVERY TOWN MEANS RELIEF FOR CONSUMER

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

Every state, county, township and municipality in the United States is to have an official food administration organization working hand in hand with the national food administration under Herbert C. Hoover.

Hoover recognizes the fight for food control as the people's fight and believes that to get maximum results the organization must reach directly to the people, producers and consumers alike, in every nook and corner of the country. To this end the work is to be decentralized. State boards of food administration will be established in each state. These will further decentralize by organizing county boards and these county boards will direct local organizations in cities, townships and villages.

Through these organizations the food administration will be in direct touch at all times with food conditions in every part of the country.

It will be in position to know of shortages the moment they occur and to know of excess supplies to fill these shortages.

It will be able to check prices in any section against those in other sections and to tell at once just how much prices have been forced up at every step in the marketing chain. Where supplies are short or where prices are unwarrantably high, the food administration, through its power to regulate distribution and force preferential shipments, may move in quantities of supplies from points where there is a surplus, relieving the shortage and bringing down price.

To a large extent, especially in the handling of fruits, vegetables, and other perishables, the whole work can be handled by state food organization. The Cincinnati markets, for instance, might be glutted with potatoes at a time when Cleveland was short. The county reports to the state body would show this condition at once. The state organization could order the transfer, by fast freight, of a dozen cars of potatoes from Cincinnati to Cleveland and within 24 hours the potato market in both cities would be relieved, supply regulated and prices stabilized.

Wherever such regulation is possible through switching of supplies within a state, it will be unnecessary to call upon the national organization for help. A glance at the daily reports from the different states will show where surpluses and shortages exist, what foodstuffs must be moved, and from where, to maintain an even supply and steady prices.

With proper distribution, such as can be forced under the powers granted Hoover in the food bill, not only will great supplies of foodstuffs be saved which now either never reach market or spoil in glutted markets, but prices will be stabilized and lowered through the greater certainty of a steady, dependable supply.

Appointment of the state food boards probably will be made within the next 10 days. These boards will at once get busy with county and local organizations, and it is expected Sept. 1 will see the formation of official food administration branches in every city, town and township in the nation.

BY REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

"Inside of two years social workers become just like those among whom they live, in manners, taste and general depravity."

Prosperity and fatness oozed out of the man who stigmatized the slum as a mark to a group equally self-sufficient and comfortable-looking. He thought he knew all about social workers. I could have introduced him to one of the gentlest, most refined women in his town—a college graduate—who had spent six years lifting out of the ruck and the muck of life any number of the superior gentleman's fellowcitizens—while he had never turned a hand to help them. To a certain extent he was responsible for putting them there.

And there are other social workers who, while giving the best they've got to those less fortunate, not only retain their original culture, but acquire a depth of character the portly gentleman knows nothing about.

And yet—there's a suggestion of truth in the remark. It's no easy job to live year after year in the midst of depravity and come out clean. It requires unusual grit.

When it is remembered that the social worker's home is never free from the atmosphere—and sometimes it's more taggish than atmosphere—of the slum and the slough of despair in which his charges live, when it is recalled that his salary is usually so pitifully small that he is deprived of those things which are the heritage of every person of refinement—especially the woman social worker, when it is remembered that he is up to his eyes in the mire of the slum, it is not surprising that some workers go down.

ONLY TWENTY YEARS AGO.

(Greenville, Ill. Advocate.)

Editor Swann, of the Pike County Republican, last week grew reminiscences. He discovered a wonderful change has taken place in the world in a short time. Here are some of the things that were and were not twenty years ago:

There were bustles. Operations were rare. Nobody swatted the fly. Nobody had seen a silo. Nobody had appendicitis. Nobody wore white shoes. Nobody sprayed orchards. Cream was five cents a pint. Most young men had "livery bills." Canteloupes were muskmelons. You never heard of a "Tin Lizzie." Doctors wanted to see your tongue. Milk-shake was a favorite drink. Advertisers did not tell the truth. Nobody cared for the price of gasoline. Farmers came to town for their mail. The hired girl drew one-fifty a week. The butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver. Folks said pneumatic tires were a joke.

Nobody "listened in" on a telephone. There were no sane Fourth of July electric meters.

Strawstacks were burned instead of baled.

Publishing a country newspaper was not a business.

People thought English sparrows were "birds."

Jules Verne was the only convert to the submarine.

You stuck tubes in your ears to hear a phonograph, and it cost a dime.

Infantile paralysis was spinal meningitis, appendicitis was inflammation of the bowels, and tuberculosis was consumption. Babies died of "summer complaint."

HER TESTIMONIAL

A bride who was deserted a fortnight after her marriage has exhibited a letter from her husband, explaining that he married her to escape the army and has now joined the army to escape her.

THE BIGGEST GUN.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

The corn crop of the United States is to be the largest ever. None of those big guns in Europe is as big as that.

FROM THE SENTINEL PAGES 25 YEARS AGO

Yesterday afternoon the engineers set the final stakes for the grading and completion of the water reservoir south of town.

Mrs. William Meyers will accompany her daughter as far as Boston, where she will remain until Mr. Meyers returns from Europe.

R. E. Richards, formerly stenographer at the Bass works, will go to Chicago next week, where he has a profitable position offered him.

F. M. Randall, city civil engineer, who has been very ill for some days past, is much improved in health and expects to be out again soon.

The street car company has issued the following advertisement: "Horses for sale cheap." The street car horse will soon be a thing of the past.

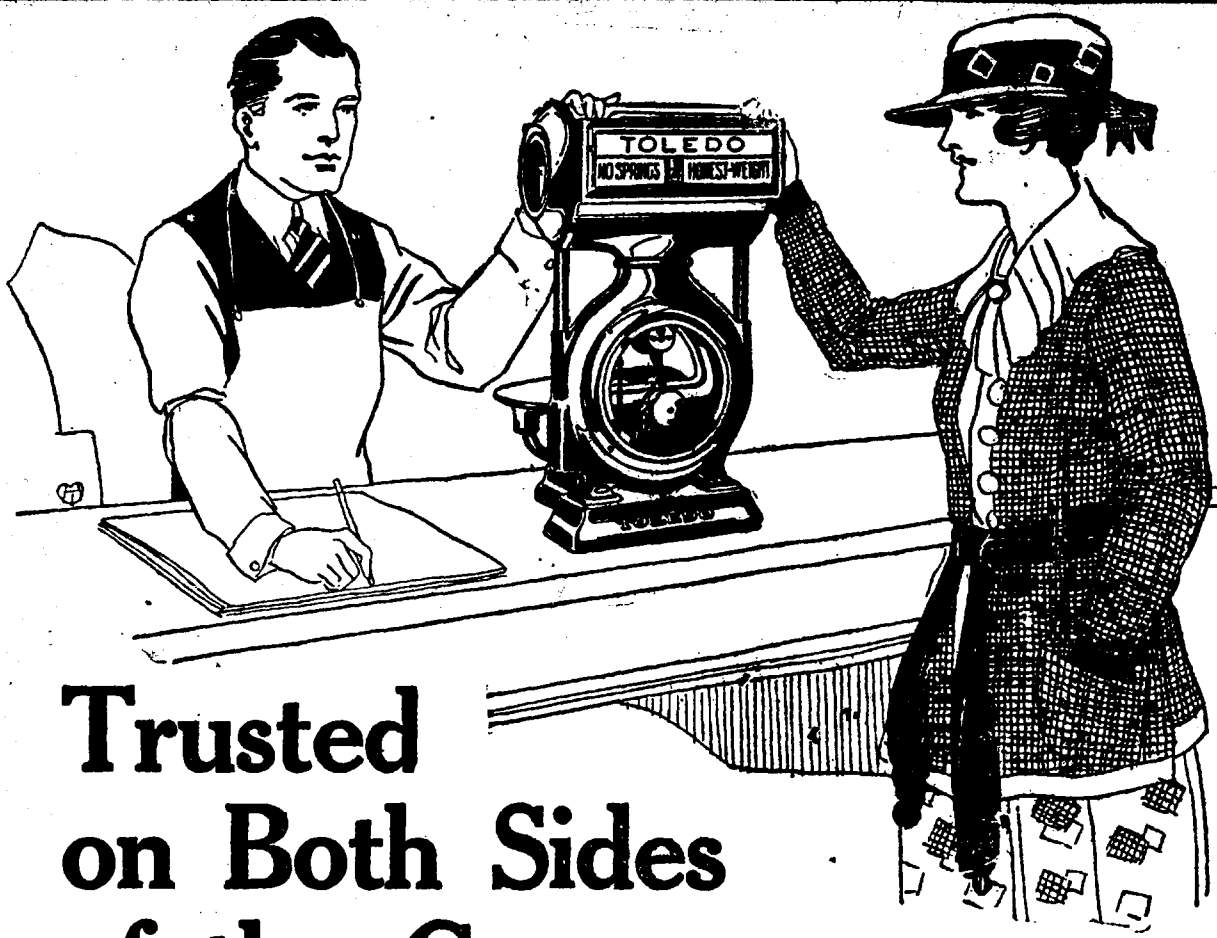

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Logan left Saturday for Chicago. From there they will go to Benton Harbor, where Mrs. Logan will remain for several weeks.

James M. Barrett, after having spent three weeks with his family at Petoskey, has returned home. His family will not leave there until the end of the summer.

The nightly musical strains on East Jefferson street have become so heart rending to the neighborhood that some of the residents are offering to dispose of their homes at a great sacrifice so as to get a few peaceful nights' rest in their declining years.

Henry J. Meyers died at 10:45 o'clock this morning. Mr. Meyers came to Fort Wayne from Germany in 1855 and has since been connected with the drug establishment of Meyer Gros. & Co. He was a prominent member of Emanuel's Lutheran church and always took a leading part in all movements towards the advancement of the church.

Frank J. Gruber, the cigar manufacturer, usually smiling and pleasant, wore a mournful look all day yesterday and his friends wondered what was the matter with him. The secret of his woe-begone expression was that his mocking bird died Sunday night. Frank was deeply attached to the bird, and indeed, he is to all pets, and mourns its death greatly. L. A. Worth, the optician, assisted at the funeral ceremonies, which are said to have been very elaborate and pathetic.

Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus off with fingers.

No humbug! You truly can lift off every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet without one bit of pain. A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying freezone or afterwards. Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go without causing one twinge of pain or soreness. Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle of freezone on the dresser and serve it a corn or callus twice.

CALL HUBBY! HERE ARE HIS FALL STYLES

By BETTY BROWN.

About once a year the editor asks me to write something about men's styles. I find the new fall modes for men appeal more than ordinarily this year to the feminine eye. The styles, though smart and brisk, are still serviceable and sober enough to be devoid of flashiness. The war seems to have "speeded them up." They are clean cut, and will make the wearer look alert.—This practical business suit is in brown serge, with invisible stripes. The patch pockets and bone buttons lend distinction.—An echo from the front is the adapted trench coat for men of fashion. It is roomy and convenient, easy to slip on and off, and comfortable on the shoulders. The model shown is in brown twill serge, fastened with bone buttons and relieved by deep pockets marked by two rows of stitching.—The golf enthusiast will be pleased with the clean lines of this suit of Connemara tweed. The coat, though roomy, is well fitted. A plain cap tops it off.—Button shoes are the smart fall mode for both men and women.

ALL OLD MEN INVITED ON WOMAN'S DAY

When the Congress of Old Ladies is held at Robison park on Thursday, August 16, a new feature will be added. Heretofore, only the elderly women have been invited to attend the congress. This year we are extending an invitation to their husbands to come with them. No more inspiring, uplifting sight can be seen than an aged couple, both of whom have reached three score years and ten. Companions throughout the years that are gone, they are still the playmates of youth. Life with all its struggles has not shaken their love and devotion. As life's years have passed, leaving only memories, these two have gone on, hand in hand, happy in one another's presence. The children have come, lingered a while, and gone to build homes for themselves. Still the fires of devotion, pledged in those younger days, burn on. So bright are their beams that today's pathway is lighted by its undying light. As we honor the wife and mother, we want the husband and father—the companion of all the yesterdays—to be our guests also. We invite you to spend Woman's Day with us, and not only you but all old men whose wives have been our guests in former years. Some of these may now be too feeble to come, while others may have passed to the great beyond. We would be glad to have you, who have walked with them through so many years, as our guests. We will present to each one of you a case as an expression of our pleasure at your presence at the congress this year. We invite you to march at her side in the parade and carry a flag.

FISH WEAR FURS.

Verna, N. H.—Gideon Glow has the only fur-covered goldfish in the world. He will exhibit them at the Verna-co. fair this fall. "It happened this way," said Glow. "My young son got to filling their tank with ice water. It almost killed them. But the idea struck me to accustom them gradually to the colder water. Now the tenth generation stands pure ice water and has a full coat of fur."

CORN ON THE COB.

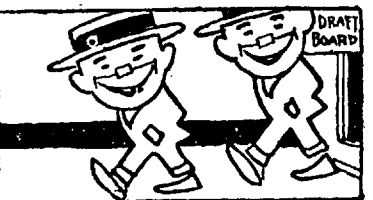

Atlas, Me.—The divorce case of Beulah Bixley against John Bixley brought out the fact that she would neither allow him to eat corn on the cob, nor cut off the corn for him. Bixley charged she told him to eat with the pigs, if he wanted corn. The court refused her petition, and granted the husband a divorce on a cross-petition alleging cruelty.

PUZZLE DRAFT BOARD.

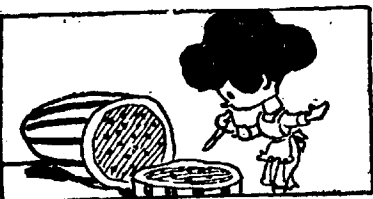

Tolney, N. M.—The Brown brothers, twins, married Jessie and Jennie Du Lang, also twins, and a child was born to one of the couples. The draft exemption board is willing to exempt the father of the dependent child, but neither of the four will reveal the facts, and both men claim exemption. They live in a double house, and the board is unable to make sure it enlists the man refused exemption, even after the child's parentage is established.

MELON IS PROPHET.

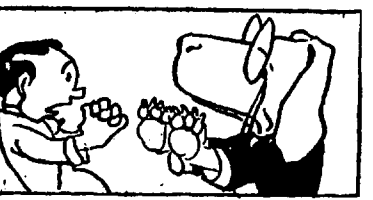

Boston, Mass.—On quattering a watermelon at a local restaurant, Mary Maguire, waitress, found the seeds on the face of one of the segments of melon spelled the date March 18, 1918. Miss Maguire, engaged to a Boston grocery driver, thinks the date refers to her marriage. The restaurant proprietor believes it is the date of the ending of the war.

WISE DOG BALKS.

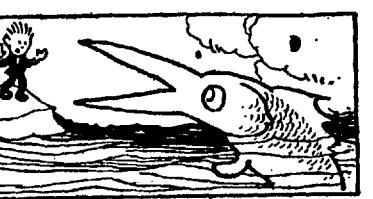

Atlanta, Ga.—An educated dog at a vaudeville house in this city refused to play his turn. The most competent local veterinary pronounced the dog in perfect health and the owner and trainer was at his wits' ends. Finally it was discovered that the dog, whose contract provided headline position, had been placed second in a comedy sketch. The dog would not perform until new programs were printed.

DISCOVER NEW FISH.

Archdale, Del.—Coast fishermen have discovered a new type of fish, which they have named the submarine. Nets were brought up with the meshes cut, and hauls of the fishermen were next to nothing. Finally Ezra Jones caught two of the submarine fish. They are equipped with a shearing device of bone, similar to the wire net shears of the German U-boats and are doing much damage.

SOMETHING IN A NAME.

Tabor, Okla.—Carl Morris, midget named after the famous giant prizefighter, was arrested here for disturbing the peace. His parents, who hoped he would follow his namesake, had finally put him with a circus sideshow in disgust when he weighed only fifty pounds at 16 years. Before his arrest he had whipped the fat man and the wild man from Boone. His parents have taken him to New York to train him to enter the ring for the flyweight championship.

EARNING WAR FUNDS.

Bar Harbor, Me.—Sheriff Ames released the women arrested in the gambling raid on the Ladies' Afternoon Bridge club when they testified that by members' agreement all winnings were to be turned over by the winners to the Red Cross. Future meetings of the club, however, will have to be held under the supervision of a court officer, to see that the pledge is kept.

A DIG AT CONGRESS.

Congress Lake, O.—Residents at this place are going to petition for a change in the name of their postoffice.

"We find," said the chairman of the protest committee, "that congress is becoming synonymous with delay and shiftiness, and maybe even worse. We think some congressmen should be thrown into the lake, but not our lake. It still has a good reputation."

AN HONEST PIGEON.

Stella, Mont.—Gervaise Nichols says it's true about casting your bread upon the waters. He stopped to feed a tame pigeon in the city hall park and found about its neck his wife's diamond ring, which disappeared while sunning on the porch after a thorough washing a week before. But the ring wouldn't come off the pigeon's neck and Nichols is keeping his feathered benefactor till it dies, refusing to kill the honest bird.

Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth, so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoother and beautifier.

Just try it. Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Advertisement.

Colleges Favor Continuing Football in Spite of War

Coaches Are Almost Unanimous in Desire to Go on With Athletics.

BY PAUL PURMAN.

What is to happen to college football this season?

With the first officers' reserve camp filled with college athletes, with many more applying for the second camps and the draft taking more, the question of continuing football this fall naturally arises.

To find the attitude toward football I wrote to coaches and athletic directors of a number of representative colleges asking:

(1) Whether football would be continued this fall.

(2) The number of eligible men who would not return to college on account of the war.

(3) Whether the freshman rule would be abolished in order to fill the depleted ranks of athletes.

Letters received from a number of coaches convince me that while the football squads of practically every college will be seriously depleted, athletics will be continued and the rules governing college sport before the war will not be changed.

The following coaches wrote expressing their views on the status of college sports: Fred J. Murphy, Northwestern university; Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt; E. J. Stewart, University of Nebraska; J. W. Helsman, Georgia University of Technology; Fielding H. Yost, University of Michigan; T. E. Jones, University of Wisconsin; E. O. Stehm, University of Indiana; H. F. Schulte, University of Missouri; A. W. Mayer, Iowa State college; C. A. O'Donnell, Purdue university; J. W. Wilce, Ohio State university; A. H. Sharpe, Cornell; R. C. Zuppke, University of Illinois; and Glenn S. Warner, University of Pittsburgh.

The list represents practically all of the big mid-western colleges, several colleges in the south and east and expresses the sentiments in the western conference, the Missouri Valley conference and the southern conference in addition to the situation in unattached colleges of the east.

The survey shows that with the exception of Yale, Harvard, Princeton, West Point and Annapolis, practically all schedules will be carried out as planned.

Other large eastern colleges, Dartmouth, Georgetown, Brown, Pennsylvania, Penn State, etc., will go on with their schedules filling dates broken by the "Big Three" or the government schools with dates with smaller colleges with intercollegiate games.

Football, of course, will not be up to the standards of other years. Many teams will be made up of men, who in normal years, would have no chance to play regularly. Letter men from last year will be scarce. Stars will be absent. Practically every All-American player from 1916 has joined the colors.

Robert C. Zuppke, coach at Illinois, meets this issue philosophically. "Since most of the universities will face the same situation we are facing," he writes, "we will be no worse off than they."

"If eleven men are left in school we will play football," Warner and Mayer declare.

The question of abolishing the freshman rule to provide more players met opposition in almost every case.

C. A. O'Donnell, the Purdue coach, and Glenn Warner are the only coaches openly supporting it.

"I would like to see the freshman rule abolished," O'Donnell wrote, "although I am not hopeful it will be. I believe this year's teams will be much weaker, even with freshmen playing, and if we are to keep the interest of the students and the public we must furnish at least fair brand of football. Under the present unsettled conditions, when football in 1918 is extremely doubtful, I do not believe any college would permit proselytizing, which seems to be the chief objection to abolishing the rule."

But the attitude of most of the coaches toward the freshman rule is expressed by Coach Wilce, of Ohio State:

"We stand absolutely for the retention of the freshman rule," he wrote. "We believe in real standards and decency in sport."

Several colleges which earlier advocated abandoning football changed their plans when President Wilson advised the retention of college sport this summer.

SWIMMING MEET AT DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—Swimmers from Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Cleveland and several other cities are expected to compete at the Detroit boat club Aug. 18 for several A. U. championships and a number of state titles. Several title holders are in government service and cannot compete. As a result several new champions will be developed. There are fifteen events planned in divisions for boys, men and women. The Central A. U. championship includes the 150 yard back stroke, 200 yard breast stroke, one mile, and plunge for distance, for men.

How Invalid Woman Fan "Sees" Game—Score by Carrier—Hubby Sends Bird at Each Inning

(By Linton K. Starr.)

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15.—Ladies and gentlemen, meet the champion baseball fan of America and his carrier pigeons by which he relays the score through the air!

The champion baseball fan is two—Mr. and Mrs. John H. Legien, of Atlanta, Ga. Until two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Legien never missed a game. They could tell you the batting average of men in majors and minors, they talked box scores instead of neighborhood gossip at the breakfast table and on holidays went to the ball park instead of the picnic.

Then came tragedy—Mrs. Legien became ill. On recovery she found she would be practically an invalid for life. No more baseball games for the wife; husband went alone—and she had to wait until hours afterward to find out who won; for the Legiens live ten miles from the park.

1917 Football Sentiment

Purdue University—C. A. O'Donnell, Coach. Only three of last year's squad expected back. Most of the men have joined the officers' reserve corps. The team must be built up from last year's second and freshman teams.

University of Illinois—Robert C. Zuppke, Coach. I am sure of but two old men back. The rest are either at Fort Sheridan or at the aviation school at Urbana, Ill. We do not favor abolishing the freshman rule.

Cornell University—A. H. Sharpe, Coach. Although I have no definite information, I am sure that practically every team candidate has joined some branch of the service. We intend to play our schedule.

Ohio State University—J. W. Wilce, Coach. At this time we can count on only five of eighteen regulars to return. Many of our men have joined the officers' reserve corps, the state militia and the government agricultural service. This includes Harley, all-American halfback. Favor retention of the freshman rule.

Iowa State University—Charles W. Mayer, Coach. Most of our candidates are in government service, but as long as we have eleven men who can play football we will have a team to encourage healthy sport and physical training. I believe eligibility rules should be enforced as at present.

University of Missouri—H. F. Schulte, Coach. Of twelve letter men who would ordinarily be back I can count on only three, and they may join the second officers' camp. I rather believe all the schools will have better teams than are expected. The men who fill in will try mighty hard to fill the shoes of those who have gone. I favor the retention of the freshman rule.

Indiana University—E. O. Stehm, Coach. I don't know of a single letter man who will return. In addition a majority of last year's freshmen will not be back. However, we expect to play football this fall. University of Michigan—Fielding H. Yost, Coach. I do not know exactly how many men we will lose, except that Capt. C. C. Smith and five or six other regulars have joined the navy. We expect to play our regular schedule with the men who have not volunteered and have not been drafted. Am not in favor of abolishing the freshman rule.

University of Wisconsin—T. E. Jones, Chairman Athletic Department. We are planning to go ahead with all intercollegiate sports, although the schedules may be shortened. We are only sure of three football regulars returning and many freshmen have also joined government service. Abolition of the freshman rule would be a step backward.

Georgia Tech expects to continue football and intercollegiate sports, believing this will prove no inconsiderable part of the nation's preparation for war. We will lose several men who have volunteered or been drafted, but the ranks will be filled by freshmen, our freshmen rule having not yet gone into effect.

University of Nebraska—E. J. Stewart, Coach. Of seventeen letter men from the 1916 team eleven are training at Fort Snelling and one has been drafted, leaving five letter men, four of whom were substitutes. Four of the most promising freshmen candidates were also drafted. Only one of seven basketball letter men will return. Of 143 athletes in college last year 83 are in the officers' reserve corps or have enlisted in some branch of the service. Nebraska, however, will proceed with the heaviest schedule in its history. We favor retention of the freshman rule.

Vanderbilt University—D. E. McGugin, Coach. Seven members of the 1916 team are in the officers' reserve corps and we probably will not have more than one letter man back. We expect to continue our athletics.

Northwestern University—Fred J. Murphy, Coach. Northwestern will lose its entire veteran line and two halfbacks including the 1917 team captain, leaving only two letter men available. Enlistments have depleted our freshman team and second string, taking practically every man who would have been counted on in normal times. We strongly favor retention of the freshman rule.

Pittsburgh University—Glenn S. Warner, Coach. I will lose most of my last year's regulars, but even if we lost every man on the 1916 squad, Pittsburgh university would continue its football. Personally I favor abolishing the freshman rule, but the school has decided not to do so.

WORRIED ABOUT COVELESKIE. Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—Admirers of Harry Coveleskie, the big left-hander of the Detroit Americans, are considerably concerned over his poor showing this year.

When the Tigers jumped back from New York recently in Sunday game with Chicago the Pole was left behind when Detroit resumed its eastern swing. Hughie Jennings was quoted at the time in a local newspaper as saying that unless Coveleskie showed a decided improvement when the team returned he would not be used again this season. Coveleskie said that a muscle or tendon in his left shoulder was bothering him.

MANY TENNIS STARS IN STATE TOURNEY

Country Club Event Will Attract Leaders from Several States.

Some of the foremost tennis stars of Indiana and surrounding states will participate in the state tennis tournament to be held at the Country club, August 20 to 25. The fact that the meet is open to all amateurs, whether residents of Indiana or not, assures some of the best talent of the middle west.

Although there will be no prizes or cups this year, the winners will be given Red Cross certificates, and the journey will have all the features of former years. Dr. Charles D. Humes, of Indianapolis, will referee the matches. A large number of entries have already been received by F. E. Hoffman, chairman. The entry list closes at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

COFFROTH TO STAGE TWO BIG MATCHES

Hasn't Retired from Fight Game Although Interested in Racing.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—James W. Coffroth, though a prosperous race track manager, racing president of the 71 Juana Jockey club, hasn't eliminated the boxing game from his makeup entirely and is out with the announcement that the Mexican city will be the scene of at least two big fights. One probably will be between Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, and some worthy foe, and the other he hopes will bring Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, against the winner of the Carl Morris-Fred Fulton match. Coffroth already has closed a contract for Carl Morris in the event Morris defeats Fulton. "How will you get Willard? I don't think he cares to fight," said Nate Lewis, manager for Morris. "I'll bid so high for the match he can't say no without announcing his retirement from the ring. There is plenty of money in 71 Juana and I can afford to bid high," said Coffroth.

FAST TIME EXPECTED AT RANDALL TODAY

Four Races Are on Program Featured by $3,000 Press Stake.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—With the track in good condition today it is expected some fast time will be made on the North Randall track and some new season records for the Grand circuit established.

Four races, two with fields above the average, are on the program, the principal event being the $3,000 press stake for 2:17 trotters. Of the six starters in this race, Royal Mac will probably be the favorite.

In the 2:10 pace with a purse of $1,000 Butte Hale is looked upon as a strong choice owing to his great showing at Columbus last week.

The 2:15 trot, for a purse of $1,000 has Bintand as a slight favorite over the others. Jay Mack seems to have the call in the 2:19 pace, also for a $1,000 purse.

On account of a heavy downpour of rain this morning the time for the races yesterday was slow. The Woodman, unbeaten trotter of the 1917 season, and favorite for the 2:09 trot, was defeated by Miss Perfection.

Ruth Mainstreet was the only favorite to win during the afternoon's racing, winning the three-year-old trotting stake. In the 2:07 pace, The Savoy, the favorite, was beaten by Day Spring, and Peter G, favorite in the 2:17 pace, was defeated by Spy Direct, piloted by Geers.

INDIANA-OHIO GAME AROUSING INTEREST

May Run Excursion for Big Match at Indianapolis November 3.

Fort Wayne alumni and former students of Indiana and Ohio state universities are already making preparations for the football game at Indianapolis on Nov. 3 between Indiana and Ohio state. G. A. Smiley, an alumnus of Indiana university, is arousing interest here in the big game and is organizing the alumni of the city for a big demonstration at Indianapolis on that day.

If enough from this city signify their intentions of attending the game it is probable that a special car will be chartered for the trip. Posters will be distributed in the city giving information in regard to the game.

Both Ohio and Indiana will continue football this year despite the fact that the former of both teams, and the game at Indianapolis is expected to attract an enormous crowd.

SPEAKER WILL BE ABLE TO PLAY IN FEW DAYS

Famous Cleveland Fielder Will Not Be Out of Game Long.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—Tris Speaker, Cleveland's famous center fielder, who was knocked unconscious by a pitched ball in the eighth inning of yesterday's second game and forced to retire, will be able to play again within a few days, according to Dr. H. M. Castle, the club physician.

Speaker was hit by the first ball pitched by Danforth who relieved Fahren in the eighth inning. Danforth's first pitch was a speedy ball and it struck Speaker just above the right temple. Speaker was knocked unconscious, but recovered in a few minutes and started for first base, but was persuaded to go to the bench. Roth will probably play center field today.

Summer Complaint.
During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."—Advertisement.

IN DEATH SAVES GIRL BATHER AS HE PROMISED HER TO DO

Staff Special:
Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 15.—"Don't you worry, little girl. Before you go down I'll go down myself."
That pledge from Dennis McCarthy, a life-long friend of the family, took Mrs. Betty Shaffer, slender and 20, into the water.
McCarthy's lifeless body, holding the girl up to safety, took her from death's grip and fulfilled his promise.
"He shook hands with me as he promised to drown to save me if necessary," said Mrs. Shaffer. "I am a poor swimmer, and afraid, but his handclasp banished all my fear."
"And that is the last I remember of Dennis McCarthy's courage until this: 'I stand on his shoulders. His feet are on the ground. My head is above the water. I am safe. Men are coming to take me out.'"
But—the current swings past my ankles. And as it swings it moves something back and forth against them, something that bobs first against one ankle and then against the other—Dennis McCarthy's lifeless head, swayed on his shoulders by the flowing water!"
McCarthy and Mrs. Shaffer had started out of their depth to help rescue another girl. They got into a swift current.
"Put your arms around my neck," said McCarthy. Her body was too heavy. He began to sink.
"I could feel him slipping lower and lower," Mrs. Shaffer told afterward. "But he kept hold of me and held me up."
"His hands were at my waist, then at my knees, then at my ankles."
"He put my feet on his shoulders. It seemed many minutes that I stood there, knowing he was dying, and saving me."
"And—I could tell from the feel of it, when there was no longer any life in his tugging head."
Mrs. Betty Shaffer and Dennis McCarthy who, even after his death, saved her from drowning.

"We Are Growing Very Old, Dear"

Della Williams Paine, who wrote the words and music of the patriotic song, "Hoover for Uncle Sam," which will be taught to school children, both in Toledo and Fort Wayne, has written two new songs, especially for the Old Ladies' Congress. After witnessing Emma Dunn's performance in "Old Lady 31," Mrs. Paine wrote: "We are growing very old, Dear." In this song the aged husband, Abe, is supposed to be talking to his lovely old wife Angie. The title of the second song is "Dear Old Quaker Lady," and the singer is supposed to be a mischievous lad of the neighborhood, whose heart has been completely won by this old lady, who says she and thou. Both these songs will be sung by Wilmarth Paine at the Old Ladies' Congress at Robison park tomorrow.

What About It? Oriental Queer or Occidental?

The following letter was written by a Chinese to the editor of a San Francisco newspaper. It rather tends to show that, while the "heathen Chinese" may be peculiar, his brother human, the white man, may have a few idiosyncracies of his own.

The letter reads:
The Editor—Sir: I am already born here in San Francisco by Chinese parents, so also am well qualified to speak of what I see and hear. The other night I attended a banquet (after the banquet) to hear illustrious speakers speak on "Conservation." On the table before which the sitters sat to listen to the speakers speak, were evidences of wine that was drunk at the banquet and each (or nearly so) listener was smoking an expensive cigar or cigarette. Now then, one of the speakers, after sipping some wine, suggested Americans deny themselves wheat bread and meat for two days a week so as to conserve the food of this country. How funny it seemed to an Oriental mind—this sort of reasoning. Millions spent in the manufacture, distribution and consumption of alcoholic drink and narcotic tobacco, the devotees of which fill eventually the madhouse, the jail or the grave, and not a word said in favor of abolishing these evils. The governor of the state was there also.

Branch Rickey Came to Baseball to Educate Himself --and He Still Is at It.

The Gentle Art of "Getting Along" Could Have No Better Example Than in Case of $15,000-a-Year President of St. Louis Cardinal Club.

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

GETTING along is the important thing in life as we know it. Let the philosophers sneer as they may, boys and girls, men and women of any account want to "do well," to "get along." Not necessary to become rich, but to be comfortable, to pay their debts, support their children, have a little money in the bank to help a distressed friend if necessary, to be independent, to be self-respecting.

I know that William J. Locke and other authors have preached the gospel of "Oh, what does it matter?" etc. But I have noticed that the popular "beloved vagabond" is mostly a "bum," a "good fellow," who simply borrows money from all his friends—dimes them to death," as they say.

I have had more than one good friend, the lovable, careless, devil-may-care "beloved vagabond," who, mostly, was a traitor to mother, sister, wife and child, the genial, irresponsible, who, possessed by the liquor lust more than by the wanderlust, quits his responsibilities every now and then, goes on a big drunk and "touches" every one he can reach.

This is the gentleman who has no sense of the value of money—the fellow who rails at the man who saves a dollar. This is the so-called "good fellow," the test of goodfellowship being the length of time he could stand up against a bar and drink the whisky some other fellows bought him.

I have never been a money saver, but I have had a dime to lend and a dime to spend for twenty-five years now.

I have often wondered why nine of every ten so-called "good fellows" are really macers and "deadbeats." That's why I have a large respect for my antithesis, the "man who gets along." That's why I have a large respect for Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis National League baseball club. He was a "bone poor" boy. He is not a bad fellow. He made up his mind to "get along." He is "getting along."

Rickey at 36 is a man of mark. Fifteen years ago he left the farm at Lucasville, Ohio, with $70, proceeds of his own labor, in his pocket—his worldly goods, like the wardrobe of Hon. Richard Dowling, wrapped up in his red pocket handkerchief.

In that fifteen years, a short space of time, Rickey took a college course, a post-graduate course in law, became a lawyer, an amateur baseball player, coach of a college baseball team, a professional baseball player, a minor league baseball player, a major league baseball player, a scout for a major league team, manager of a major league team, office manager of a major league club and president of a major league baseball club at a salary of $15,000 a year, an interest in the club, an interest in the profits of the club and a chance to purchase the $500,000 property under certain conditions.

Rickey did all this by himself. No one to help him. During his period of coming up he married, lost two years through illness, had to quit a $4000-a-year job because his arm went weak, and met with other impediments. He assisted his parents, two young brothers and scores of boys as he went along.

Of New England Stock.

There may be certain things about Branch Rickey, college man, baseball player and baseball manager, that I do not care about. He is a trifle too sober, too grim, for my dearest loving. He is a trifle too good, too religious, too strict, too Puritanical to be as lovable as some of the "beloved vagabonds" I have met. Yet Rickey has done pretty close my idea of what a young American should do. He has "got along" honestly, done well and has had a grand, good time doing it.

Although Rickey was born on an Ohio farm, he is of New England stock. That explains the "getting along." New Englanders have the gift of long sight. They see ahead. However, this Ohio farm family was poor. New Englanders often are poor for a generation. Rickey labored in jeans most of his young life. He got what education the district school could give. He worked on the farm.

Rickey was 18 when he got through with the district school. He at once obtained employment teaching another school in the neighborhood. He got $40 a month for seven months a year teaching that school. He got board and $20 a month working on the farm for the other five months. Thus Rickey's gross income for the first year of work was $380. He paid his own board while he was teaching school.

The boy was wild to go to college. The family funds would not endure the strain. So Rickey got the books which covered the curriculum of the freshman year at Ohio Wesleyan and studied as best he could.

When the summer vacation came around, some of the neighbor boys who had been to college returned to their homes. They brought with them their learning and their books. When Rickey heard the young fellows talk of what they had learned and when he saw the Tutoring Saved Career.

"Of course, I did not get paid while tutoring for my college. But the eligibility rules were not strong, particularly in those days, and I caught for the town teams, for which I was paid. It was not much—$2, $3, $4. When I first got $5 for catching a game of baseball I felt that I had attained the heights of affluence."

"During the summer of my freshman year I got a regular job catching on a semiprofessional team. That was $60 a month, real money. I could make $300 playing baseball during the summer then."

Rickey had a hard time during his sophomore year. I was in his office the other day when he got a call on the telephone. "Hello! Hello, Bill!" he cried, gladly.

"Sure, I know you. Knew you the moment you spoke. How could I ever forget you? You are coming to see me, aren't he would play Sunday ball. His earning capacity was small at the time. He got from $125 to $175 a month for four and one-half months in the year. That means that his total income from baseball was from $518 to $850. Rickey had to live narrowly to keep within his income.

I have always noticed that early poverty, involuntary economy, hardens and tempers the mettle of man. If I was to lay down a precept for "getting along" for a young man, I would prescribe that he should be obliged to earn his own livelihood, that it should be a meager one, that he should be obliged, willingly or unwillingly, to live within it, and that he should go to college at the same time.

The best and most successful men I have ever known earned their own way through college and lived always within the meager income they derived from the odd jobs. The boys who go through college on the money supplied them by parents never do as well as the boys who earn their way through college. That phenomenon is easily explained. The boy who earns his way through college is ambitious to learn. The hardships of his

I have heard many a senior whose way has been liberally defrayed by generous parents, regret that he was about to leave college "just when he was beginning to appreciate it." I have heard many a senior, who hated college in his freshman and junior years, wish that he had his college life to live over again. College days are unquestionably the best days of any man's life. All wise boys, and some who are not so wise, begin to appreciate their college days just when they are about done. So with all life, I think. We appreciate nothing until we have lost or are about to lose it. It is one of the many tragedies of human nature.

The boy who has to work his way through college wants to get done as quickly as possible. There is none of the droll far niente in his busy day of chore doing and studying. He has lived narrowly, worked hard, dressed poorly, studied hard and worked like a bond slave. It is the life beyond the college, not the college, that has charms for him. Oxford's walls have charms for the man who can afford to be a valetudinarian. They have none for the lad who must mouth to be possessed of these things. There never was a harder fighter in a baseball game than Rickey. Yet nobody ever heard a foul word from his mouth. His favorite cuss word is "Judas Priest." He played baseball in a day when players were rough and more treacherous than now. But cuss words and passion were quite unnecessary to Rickey. He had a loud voice and untold energy, and he employed both to the fullest extent.

Rickey was receiving $2000 from the St. Louis club when he was traded to New York. McAlister liked Rickey, but he knew that the boy had an ambition to be a lawyer and was fearful that some day Rickey would retire from baseball and leave his team without his services.

Rickey played for two years with New York. He was 23 years old when he found himself in a position to study law. He obtained the position of baseball coach at the University of Michigan and took up law at that college. He quit the New York baseball club, though his salary as coach at Michigan was less than one-half of his salary as a player at New York.

Rickey spent four years coaching and studying law at Michigan. He worked so hard, put so much of himself into his occupation and into his studies, that he found himself stripped of health when he got his diploma. He was obliged to spend two years in the West recuperating his health. He had married and children had been born to him in the meanwhile. When he recovered his health he was 27 years old, a husband, a father, and broke after twelve years of the hardest sort of labor. He possessed an education, a trained mind and knowledge of two professions, baseball and law.

So far he has not made any use of his legal training. But study of law trained his mind so that he is undoubtedly the best mind in baseball today. The trained mind, combined with his professional knowledge of baseball, makes Rickey worth $15,000 a year to his employers. That is more money than a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States receives.

Rickey was poor, so far as money goes, in 1913. He had recovered his health and he set about recouping his fortunes. The first thing that came to his hand was a position as scout, or procurer of young players, for the St. Louis American League baseball club, a team for which he had played five years before. The scout, Les Hedges, owner of the club, scarce knew Rickey as a player. Hedges was impressed by the energy and trained mind of the young lawyer. He gave him a position as scout and privately resolved to promote him to the position of president and executive officer of the club. This position would have suited Rickey exactly.

Fortune, however, did not favor Rickey. There has been little luck in the life "getting along" of this young man. He had the luck of being born and reared poor. That was all. He lost his first big chance to succeed in the remunerative profession of baseball because he would not sacrifice his religious principles to expediency. He had sacrificed his baseball success to study law. Ill-health fell upon him.

Rickey seemed to have reached the position he desired with that of executive officer of a baseball club in 1913. The George Stovall, manager of the St. Louis team, got into disfavor with spectators and league officials. It was necessary that Mr. Hedges should secure a manager. Rickey was the man at hand. Against his will, Rickey was obliged to assume the position of field manager of a baseball team.

He managed the St. Louis team during part of 1913 and all of 1914 and 1915. Conditions did not permit him to attain great fame as a manager, but he set a new fashion in training players and in securing young men for his team. He proved himself to be a master judge of young players.

Again, when it seemed that Rickey would attain to the postponed presidency and executive management of a baseball club, fate fell against him. His employer, Mr. Hedges, sold his interests in the club to St. Louis people. These gentlemen had owned the St. Louis Federal League club and had a manager of their own, Flanders Alanson Jones, a man of great repute. Then Rickey was quite unknown to them. They could not very well choose him to be executive manager of properties which had cost them $700,000. The best they could offer him was the position of office or business manager. This carried with it a salary one-third less than the salary Rickey had been receiving as manager of the club. He was obliged to accept it at the time.

It seemed that fate had been unkind to Rickey. He felt so himself. Yet such are the freaks of fate that it turned out to be the best thing that could possibly have occurred to the young man.

So far Rickey had been known only as a baseball manager. In so much as the best he had ever done was to finish fifth, then drop to seventh place, his success was far from assured. His legal and oratorical abilities had been established as dormant and unsuspected even by himself.

When Rickey became business manager of the St. Louis team he was designated to attend luncheons and dinners given the players by the commercial bodies of St. Louis. Among them was the St. Louis Business Men's League, now the Chamber of Commerce, composed of the big and little business men of the city, entertained the club at luncheon. Rickey responded to speeches complimenting the players. His speech on "Baseball as an Aid to Business" made an impression on his audience. Rickey's fame was established.

Ability to think and to forcibly express his thoughts is a great asset to a young man. Rickey possesses it in the highest degree. He is a master of argument. He drives home his points with hammer blows. He is earnest, he believes what he says, he knows what he is talking about. His voice is not very mellifluous, his gestures are not graceful, he is not a master of oratory in the fullest sense, but he can make a most convincing argument. Of all orators, Daniel O'Connell, the Irish patriot of the middle nineteenth century, has been accounted the greatest, because he could control his audience, he could lead or cry, think or give way to passion, just as he pleased. Rickey is not that kind of an orator. He is, however, superb in logical argument. He has energy and he drives home his points with terrific force. Addressing cool American business men is quite another thing than addressing wild, impulsive Irishmen. I must say that I have never heard a more convincing pleader than Branch Rickey.

Latin, Greek, French, German and scientific books they had, he almost died of chagrin.

"My soul burned to learn the things these boys were learning, almost against their will," said Rickey. "I was green with envy, red-ran with disappointment. I determined to go to college at any cost."

Mr. Rickey, Sr., did not want his boy to go to college then. He was sure that he could get the boy a more lucrative school next term. Young Rickey made up his mind. He was going to college.

So he drew his $70 out of the bank, packed his clothes in his pocket handkerchief, and went.

It was some grind. Rickey had to depend upon himself. His father had a growing family at home. He was a loving father, but he had children less able to take care of themselves than his eldest son. Then the boy did not want any help. All he wanted was to be allowed to help himself.

He had to do some heavy helping. Seventy dollars did not go very far even in a freshwater college fifteen years ago. Rickey had to have tuition fees, money for books, money for board, clothes, etc. So Rickey did chores, blacked stoves, split wood, carried horses and mules, served as first lord of the bedchamber, to name, waited on table, drove a hack, tutored students richer and more backward than himself, ran messages, tended store, served as telegraph lineman, night watchman, pressed wearing apparel, sold books and did a thousand and one odd jobs to help pay his way through college.

And at the same time he found leisure during which to become a great baseball player. There is a lot of fun to be found playing ball.

"I took up baseball to make money to put me through college," said Rickey. "That is why I became a catcher."

"There were two positions which I noticed were always paid—pitcher and catcher. In the small towns they will have seven unpaid players and two paid players. The paid players are the pitcher and the catcher. I did not have enough speed to be a good pitcher. Then the boys did not like catching. They said that it was too much like work. I did not mind the work. I needed the money. That is why I became a catcher. I had played a little ball when I was on the farm, but never enough to do me any good. I began my baseball career in college."

you? I'll be awfully glad to see you. Come right out, I am waiting for you."

"That," explained Rickey, "is a man whom I tutored during my sophomore year. Gee, he did a lot for me. I made about $80 teaching him. Had it not been for that $80 I never could have got through the semester."

When he was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan, Rickey went out and played professional ball. He was with independent teams in Ohio, Illinois and Iowa for one year. Then he obtained a regular engagement in the Texas League. After two years there he was given a chance at Cincinnati. Being of a religious turn of mind, he refused to play on Sundays.

"If you are too good to play on Sunday, you are too good to play on Monday," said Joe Kelley, who was manager of the Cincinnati club. So he gave Rickey his release. Rickey went back to the Texas League. There was a huge difference in the salary he would have got had he stayed at Cincinnati and the salary he got in Dallas. Which shows that while Rickey was wildly eager to "get along," he was not sacrificing principle to expediency.

All through his baseball career he played with teams which played, as all teams do, baseball on Sunday. There never was a time when Rickey could not have got from $25 to $75 more each month condition spur him to extra exertions that he may get through college as quickly as possible and begin to earn enough to live more generously.

The Incentive Lacking.

The boy whose way is paid through college by his parents has no such incentive to labor. That his family can pay his way through college means that there are means at home. Why, then, should son be in any great hurry to get through the best years of his life—college years?

pay for his education with his blood.

Ambitious as he was to "get along," Rickey did not sacrifice his religious principles that he might achieve success. He succeeded just the same.

After two years with the Dallas baseball team Rickey went to the St. Louis Browns. There he received for the first time in his life—and he was 24 years old—a living wage, $1500 a season. He made a success of baseball. He was a good catcher, a good hitter and an energetic player. They talk about "pop" and fight and grit and claim that a man must be foul of

of the occasion at 8:30 p. m., and also by the added attraction of a balloon ascension which will be made at 4:30 p. m.

The exhibits had all been completed Wednesday morning, together with the list of all the names of the persons making entries, and plans finished for the various contests.

Senator Watson was inclined when first notified and asked to speak at the patriotic demonstration this evening not to take the proposition seriously because of the name of the organization, which appealed to him evidently as a bit of humorous play-by-play and it was not until a few days ago that the local committee found out what Senator Watson's attitude was and he was then prevailed upon to take the matter seriously. As a result he will arrive at 5:15 on the Pennsylvania, being met by a committee of the Potato Patch Patriots and escorted to the Anthony hotel.

Roy Campbell of Company E, Indiana national guard, received his equipment here today and will make a balloon flight which will lend attraction to the series of entertainments. Campbell is said to be a balloonist of some experience and has been making descensions in various parts of the state. He makes the usual parachute drop at a certain height which is promised will furnish the usual thrill.

Nothing has been overlooked to make the celebration a gala day. Plenty of entertainments have been promised by members of the various clubs in charge who have worked hard in preparing the schedule of events. The band concert will start at 7:30 p. m. and will be followed by the speaking program.

No charge will be made for anything connected with the program and it is expected that one of the largest crowds ever to attend a demonstration of the kind will be on hand. Arrangements have been made with the traction company to handle the people and plenty of cars are assured going and coming from the park.

The judges in the potato show will be Michael Sheridan, E. M. Trick and Luke Durnell. The judges for the baby show have all been picked from those who ought to know, no men having been selected. They are: Mrs. Frank Bohn, Mrs. E. M. Van Buskirk, and Mrs. J. F. O'Connor.

The names of those who have entered potato exhibits follow: Mrs. J. Schue, 123 East Williams; Cal Schue, 123 East Williams; Miss W. Manok, 125 East Williams; H. F. Nahrwald, 348 Broadway; Mrs. E. A. advertis after they had claimed exemption. These cases must be certified to the district board, which will pass upon them. The time for filing the exemptions expired before the affidavits were brought in. Just what the decision in these cases will be is not known.

Attention was also called, in viewing the exemption papers, that a man who has been married for some time and who is a man of reputed wealth, filed claim for exemption on the ground that his wife depended solely upon his daily work for support.

Other Slackers.
In addition to these so-called slackers, Fort Wayne has a different variety of this specie of men who are prone to show their "yellow streaks." Of 1,526 men who were called for examination in the third district, over one hundred and fifty failed to put in their appearance. In this number, of course, are included a small percentage of men who had already joined the colors. Others, however, will be found by federal authorities and without further consideration or examination will be taken into the conscript ranks.

It was ascertained late Wednesday afternoon that only fifty more men were needed in the city to complete the quota of men. More than this number will be gotten from those who filed exemption claims that will be rejected by the boards. This will mean that perhaps a small number of those who passed and waived exemption will get out from under the first draft.

GREAT STRONGHOLD OF THE GERMANS IS IN ENGLISH HANDS

southwest and encircles the suburbs of St. Laurente and St. Emille.
The British guns had been pounding for days at Hill 70, which the Germans considered impregnable. The infantry attack began at 4:35 o'clock this morning. The capture of Hill 70 ranks in importance with the biggest military operations of this year. It was the last dominating position in this section, which remained in the hands of the Germans and from it a wide territory can be controlled.

ATTACK ON WIDE FRONT.

London, Aug. 15.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's forces attacked the German positions along a wide front early this morning from Lens to the northeast of Loos. The official statement says the British are making progress satisfactorily.

General Haig reports that the British troops have carried the German first line at all points of the front at attack.

GETS BACK TO GERMANY.

Amsterdam, Aug. 15.—Naval Lieutenant Otto Sierk, one of the few remaining survivors of the German Pacific squadron which was defeated by the British off the Falkland islands in December, 1914, has returned in returning to Germany, according to the Zeitung of Eisenach, Saxony. The lieutenant's journey from South America occupied eight months and was accompanied by great difficulties. On arriving in Germany he immediately rejoined the navy.

MUST SORT CONSCRIPTS

drafted men will be made out as soon as they reach the training camps. They will contain an abstract of the life history of the soldier showing what occupations he has been engaged in. From these a preliminary classification can be made subject always to the primary necessity of organizing a great body of infantry for duty in the trenches.

Training Will Disclose Fitness.
During the months of training at the camps it will be possible for company commanders to form estimates of the character and qualifications of their men. A process of shifting and transfer will ensue as individuals are sorted out.

There is hardly a civil trade or occupation that has not its counterpart in the army from clerk to clergyman, and no effort will be spared to get the right man in the right place in the new forces.

Already officials are being besieged with requests from men already held for military duty for assignment to particular arms of the service. Little can be done in that regard in advance of actual mobilization of the forces, but it is hoped that the wishes of many of the men can be met at the camps.

Presumably, the first increments to reach camp, will be organized as infantry companies. That was the practice followed in the officers' training camps, which have just completed one course. The basis of all military evolutions is the school of the soldier and that must be taught. In addition, it makes possible a hardening process, which will make the men physically able to meet the strain of the strenuous days to come.

To Organize Special Units.
After some weeks of elementary drill, the organization of signal, engineer, artillery and other special units will commence. The process of selection by special qualifications will be applied to the greatest possible extent. At the same time the officers will begin to get a line on men who are likely candidates for future commissions and they will be observed carefully with a view to promotion later.

Around the war department, evidences of the great army that is in the making are beginning to show. Numerous officers of the regular army already have been given war time commissions in the national army. Some have gone one grade in the process, some two. They are to be the staff officers of the new divisions, the inner circle of the training machinery. At the same time, officers just graduated from the training camps are being assigned to regiments of the new army.

The whole process of building up the commissioned personnel will be under way by the time the first thirty per cent of the drafted forces starts for camp.

ing a house yesterday they found City Councilor Largo Caballero, a socialist leader, concealed under a mattress while behind some curtains were four other members of the city yesterday. The minister of the interior and the state of Illinois; Bernard A. Eckhart, Chicago, representing the cities of Chicago and Milwaukee.

SIX KILLED IN BARCELONA.
Paris, Aug. 15.—Six persons were killed and nine others were wounded when strikers clashed yesterday with soldiers at Barcelona, according to a statement issued by the Spanish captain-general and received here by the Petit Parisien.

A dispatch to the Temps from Madrid says there was a certain agitation in view of strikers of the city yesterday. Crowds gathered continually and were dispersed by civil guards. Police and soldiers massed in various parts of the capital. Reports from Catalonia are that the strikers have not opposed energetically those who are remaining at work.

French troops last night conferred with King Alfonso, who was given details on the general situation.

THE MARKETS

FURTHER DECLINE ON CORN AND WHEAT MARK

Receipt of New Grain Having Depressing Effect on Prices.

Corn and wheat, which began a decline the early part of the week, are still on the down grade, and there is every evidence of a further depression on the local markets. The influx of the new wheat is given as the cause for the decline in that market. Local millers quoted a price of $2.06 and $2.08 per bushel for this grain Wednesday morning.

Corn, which reached the mark of $1.75 on the city scales Tuesday, dropped still more Wednesday morning, one load being weighed, selling at $1.70 per bushel.

The new hay market remained practically steady, twelve loads which were weighed at the city scales selling for $11 to $12 per ton. Two loads of old hay brought $15.

Oats also remained steady, four loads on the city scales selling for 62 and 65 cents per bushel.

CAMOUFLAGE.

"Camouflage" means, as Webster wouldn't put it, to make a thing look like what it ain't.

They're doing it in the rumpled across the big swallow to give the kaiser's goats the wrong steer. Finstance, a big gun is decorated up to look harmless, like a fella slinging harsh words and dealing a couple of uppercuts to an enemy over the phone. Do you get us?

Camouflage is a deceiver stuff. It's something, but it's made to appear like something else. It's right handed, but it listens left handed. Again finstance, some fellas camouflage their flippers with fancy stuff to make them look like regular autos.

Now, Norman, tomorrow we start in with some ideas how this camouflage stunt works in our everyday turns. Don't forget tomorrow. Better order from your newsdealers now.

The walrus or "sea horses" of the old navigators are the strangest and most grotesque of all sea mammals. Their large rugged heads, armed with two long ivory tusks, and their huge swollen bodies, covered with hairless, wrinkled and warty skin, give them a formidable appearance unlike that of any other mammal. They are much larger than most seals, the old males weighing from 2,000 to 3,000 pounds and the females about two-thirds as much. Walrus show great devotion and disregard of their own safety in defending their young.

FINED BECAUSE HIS FRIENDS USED AUTO

Henry St. Clair, Colored, Made to Pay $25 and Costs by Judge Kerr.

Ruling that because the defendant accepted five dollars from his friends for the use of an automobile Saturday night was an offense against the city ordinance of operating a motor vehicle for profit, Judge Waveland Kerr, of the city court, fined Henry St. Clair, colored, twenty-five dollars and costs in the city court Wednesday morning.

It was brought out in the trial that St. Clair gave another colored man permission to use his Ford touring car last Saturday night to take some of his friends to a dance in the Rolling Mill district and back. The boys appreciated the favor and Sunday gave St. Clair five dollars, which they had raised among themselves.

In connection with this evidence it was shown that Officer Collins saw a lady talking to St. Clair Tuesday evening. It was stated that the lady, whom St. Clair said he knew, asked the latter to take her to her home. It was at this point that the arrest was made.

St. Clair also testified that he had at various times taken some of his friends on fishing trips along the river and that the boys had chipped in and paid for the gasoline, oil and wear on the machine.

On this evidence Judge Kerr ruled that an offense had been committed and imposed the fine.

Twenty Years Old. Born in 1897, "Twenty years old," a familiar phrase in police court since the time of grace for registration has elapsed. Wednesday morning Sidney Moleman and Gee Smith, who stated they were from Decatur, Ill., appeared in court charged with train climbing. Both looked to be of conscription ages, but both stated they were but twenty years of age. An investigation will be made and in the meantime they will remain in jail until August 22 under a $200 bail.

Other Police Court Notes. G. W. Sickles, who said he was a stranger in town, was fined $5 and costs for parking his automobile near a water plug.

George Gillespie was ordered held under a bond of $100 until August 20. He is charged with child neglect.

William Wallace was mistreating his family Tuesday and Wednesday morning. He was fined $10 and costs and sentenced for thirty days on the Allen county roads. His wife said she did not care to live with him any more and that she could earn a living for herself and eight children.

For the fifth time in the past few months Tony Sandy faced the city court on a charge of drunkenness. He drew a fine of $15 and costs and was sentenced for thirty days to the Allen county roads.

Posey Young, who said he was twelve years old and who was charged with petty larceny was certified to the juvenile court.

Other drunks were disposed of as follows: John Ferguson, $5 and costs; Jim Brown, $100 and ordered held until August 21; John Kennedy was let go, John Kelly also allowed to go.

William Durr was fined $5 and costs on the charge of malicious trespass. He was arrested by Officer George L. Heller for attempting to force an entrance to a residence on Wells street at an early hour Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Moran Would Not Kill Dog After Ordered to Do So.

Mrs. Moran, who formerly lived at 1228 East Lewis street, has demonstrated that she loves her little pet dog. It is said that the dog bit the son of Mrs. Katie Kelley, of 1227 East Lewis street and that she was served with an order to kill the canine. She is alleged to have disregarded the order and will face the city court Thursday morning.

The August Sale of Furs

A Fashion Event with Special Pricing Its Keynote!

Why can we sell Furs for less in August?

In every line of activity there are two classes of buyers—those who buy when the need overtakes them, who generally pay full market price or more, and those who buy anticipating future needs, who are in a position to dictate terms within a fair and honest range.

To this latter class this store belongs. To this latter class many of its customers belong, and to this may we ascribe the many advantages all patrons of this store find here at all times—but particularly here in August in this sale of Furs.

The early purchases of pelts, after expert selection of skins made certain of quality, the contracts we let with manufacturing furriers for work to be done, when otherwise their work rooms would be inactive, bring about low fur prices in advance of the usual season and bring the new styles in Furs early, even at this lower schedule.

For Women Who Serve Their Country By Doing Men's Work

With women standing ready to fill places of men who have answered the Country's call, comes the demand for suitable clothing. The feminine dress must be laid aside, and sturdier garments, allowing utmost freedom of movement, must be supplied.

Here are stoutly made Overalls of serviceable khaki in many models, to suit every demand. Some are complete, with blouse and trousers attached; others have bibs, and there is another style with strap over the shoulders.

We are showing the best line of these.

No-Tear Hose Supporters

Who hasn't experienced the vexation of having a brand new pair of Silk Stockings ruined by the garter clasp?

No-Tear Hose Supporters prevent this, the soft, flat rubber disc protecting the hose from the metal clasp. Once snapped on the garter, these No-Tears need never be removed. Set of six costs only 15c—and they save their cost many times over.

New! The Official Uniform for Housewives

At last the American housewife has come into her own! She is now universally recognized as one of the most vital factors in the welfare of the world, and particularly in the conduct of our Food Administration.

It is possible to distinguish members of every branch of woman's service through their uniforms, as for instance, the Red Cross, the League for Woman's Service, etc., but how can one identify a woman member of the United States Food Administration? She wears no uniform which would signify the branch of the service to which she belongs or in which manner she is doing her patriotic bit. But that is all changed now, for a clever designer has evolved the

British Front in France and Belgium, Aug. 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Hill 70, the famous German stronghold northwest of the French mining city of Lens which dominates the city and the Loos salient, was captured this morning by the Canadian forces.

The British also pushed their lines into the northwestern environs of Lens, in a semi-circle around the eastern side of hill 70. The British attack was made on a 4,000 yard front which had an extreme depth of 1,500 yards.

Beginning at a point just above Hugo wood the new British positions now run southeast and beyond Hill 70 towards Lens. The line then bends

WILL REJECT PROPOSALS

Pope's Peace Plans in the Present Form Gain No Favor Anywhere.

WASHINGTON SURE PLEA IS FUTILE

Benedict's Proposal Has Not Yet Reached the State Department.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Pope Benedict's peace proposal had not been received today by the government, but Secretary Lansing said the summary, as published by The Associated Press, was substantially in accord with the unofficial outline he has before him.

There is no change in the first impression that the allies certainly will reject the proposal in its present form and probably refuse to consider it at all.

There is a growing probability that in making clear to the world their refusal they will restate their war aims. In discussing the probable channels of communication Mr. Lansing said that as the Vatican was without diplomatic status here the note would in all probability come through some neutral embassy. Declining to discuss the war aims of the allies on the ground that they might change frequently, Mr. Lansing said there had been no alteration in the aims or plans of the United States since his speech at Madison barracks. Mr. Lansing declined to say whether there had been any agreement with the allies regarding the aims of the war, but intimated that all were in accord.

CREW OF U-BOAT RISKS CAPTURE TO STEAL A PIG

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 15.—A live pig, part of the stores of the Norwegian ship Sierra, sunk by a German submarine off the Azores on June 29, was made a "prisoner of war" and transferred "squawling and kicking" from his pen on the deck of the Sierra to the hold of the U-boat, said members of the Sierra's crew who arrived here today on a Spanish ship.

The men said the U-boat risked destruction from an approaching destroyer in order to get the pig safely on board their own craft.

Petrograd, Aug. 15.—Former Emperor Nicholas and his family are being transferred to another point. They were removed in an ordinary train instead of in the gorgeous imperial train on which Nicholas was brought to the palace.

The former emperor appeared to be very much depressed. Former Empress Alexandra seemed to be pleased at the prospect of a change.

N. V. Nekrasoff, vice premier, said today that the removal of Nicholas was decided on after a series of secret sessions of the council of ministers late last month. The motives of the ministers, he said, are political and military.

GREAT CAMP NOW CLOSED

First School for Officers' Reserve Corps at Fort Harrison Ends.

COMMISSIONED MEN HAVE ALL DEPARTED

Camp Will Be Re-Opened in Two Weeks for Second Class of Men.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 15.—The first training camp for students desiring to become members of the officers' reserve corps held at Fort Benjamin Harrison formally ended today.

The camp was practically deserted by the students, although there are several thousand soldiers and officers still in training at the fort.

Preparations are being completed rapidly for the second reserve officers' camp to open August 27.

The hundreds of students at the first camp who were given commissions made practically all their preparations for leaving yesterday. Those who were unsuccessful left the camp several days ago.

The men who become officers today hurried to their homes in Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana and completed their arrangements to report for duty at the places they have been ordered.

Most of the new officers have a leave of twelve days in which to visit relatives and friends and make necessary business arrangements.

About 6,000 young men enrolled in the camp when it opened three months ago, but only about 3,000 remained to the close of the training period.

PLEAS DEMAND SOME NOTICE

Evidence is Given That Many Exemption Claims Will Be Rejected.

COUNTY BOARD TO EXAMINE MORE MEN

Believed That Sufficient Number Has Been Secured in City Districts.

Exemption pleas demand the next attention of the various selection boards. Boards in districts 2 and 3 finished the work of examining conscripts called on second summons Tuesday.

There are a number of exemption claims that are attracting more than passing notice. Records of the various boards show that there are a surprising number of married men who have asked to be exempted on the ground of having dependent wives whose marriages have taken place since the registration and several since the drawing of numbers and notification to appear. There are five such cases in one district. One conscript, who claimed exemption because of a dependent wife, was married Aug. 7, another was married on July 18, others on June 24 and June 7. There is not much likelihood of these men being exempted.

Finish Examination. The board in district 3 finished its work of examining men at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon while the board in the second district finished at noon Tuesday.

All the boards with the exception of the county district are of the opinion that enough men have been examined to secure the quota of men.

The county board will resume the work of examining men who were summoned on the second call, Monday morning. In the meantime the board has busied itself with passing on exemption claims and examining the affidavits which must accompany the claims.

They Forgot. Two pitiful cases have been cited in one of the districts of the city. Men who are married and have three and four children each, forgot to file

EXHIBIT CAR TO LEAVE.

The Oklahoma land exhibit car, at Calhoun street and Nickel Plate tracks, will be here only a few days longer, as several other cities are awaiting its arrival, according to schedule planned. S. is increasing daily, but land space and acreage remains the same. The management of the exhibit speak highly of the reception accorded them here.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

ADDED MORE WOMEN

TO SECTION FORCE

A Gang of Five Take Employment at Valparaiso With the Pennsy.

The experiments at Liverpool with women as section hands, inaugurated by the Pennsylvania two months ago, are proving the practicability of the plan and other female section gangs will be established wherever and whenever good women apply for that kind of work. The Liverpool gang now has eight women and they are performing most all kinds of labor usually falling to the lot of section hands. It is said that were it possible to use them, twenty-five or thirty women could be secured at Liverpool, but they will not go away from home and the company has all it can handle at that point. Yesterday five women began work on the tracks at Valparaiso and the number will probably be increased to eight or ten before the close of the week. These women have been placed in a "gang" by themselves and are engaged in weeding tracks and other light work. They wear overalls of a special pattern designed and adopted by the company. It was learned from a maintenance of way official this morning that the doors are open everywhere to women able and willing to work on the road as track laborers and all applications will be considered.

BANQUET ARRANGEMENTS CONTINUE.

Pennsy Veteran Employees Preparing for Annual Gathering.

More interest than anticipated, because of the war, is developing in the coming annual banquet at Valparaiso of the Veteran Employees' association of the Pennsylvania, which takes place Saturday, October 6. Because of the war and the very busy times in every department of the Pennsylvania, it was feared the interest in the banquet would wane. The announcement of the date and the intention to hold the meeting had a reviving effect, however, and interest is growing daily. There are now 400 members who will attend the banquet and this number is likely to be increased to upwards of 500. The proposition to pass up the banquet this year was not submitted to the members at it was thought voted down had it come up, one of the members said. The Nickel Plate has decided to not hold a veterans' banquet this year, because of the war.

WILL QUIT THE PENNSY.

J. W. Carpenter Purchases a Hotel at Connersville.

J. W. Carpenter has tendered his resignation as manager of the Pennsylvania line's restaurant in the Baker street station. He has purchased the Palace hotel in Connersville and will assume charge of it as soon as the Pennsylvania company releases him. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter have resided in Fort Wayne six years, having charge of the Pennsylvania line's restaurant in the old depot first and later the restaurant in the new station. They have many friends in Fort Wayne, both in and out of railway circles, who will be sorry to hear that they are about to move away.

FOREMAN RESIGNS.

Some surprise was created at the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning by the announcement that William A. McGrath, an assistant foreman, had resigned his position, effective as soon as the shop management could release him. Mr. McGrath does not state his intentions as to future employment, but it is understood he has accepted a position with another concern. He came here two or three years ago from some road in Illinois, and was soon advanced in the ranks.

SPECIAL FOR CULVER BOYS.

The summer term of school at the Culver Military academy will close Thursday, August 23, and the Pennsylvania will handle a special train from the academy to Chicago for the accommodation of the students. The number this year is not quite up to the standard, because, it is thought, of the war and the demand for the services of the boys in various industries and business lines.

HENRY FERTIG RECOVERING.

Henry Fertig came down from Plymouth yesterday to see his railway associates and report progress towards recovery. Mr. Fertig was operated upon at the St. Joseph hospital for appendicitis several weeks ago and when able to leave the hospital, went to the home of his parents at Plymouth to remain until he is able to report for duty. He is a G. R. & I. passenger brakeman.

TAKES JOB AT DUDLO'S.

C. W. Simmers resigned as a helper at the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, where he was employed for over fourteen years. He has accepted employment at the Dudlo works and will go to work there tomorrow.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

James Laughlin, of the Pennsylvania planting mills, is off duty on account of sickness.
Otto Roessner, assistant file clerk at the Pennsylvania motive power offices, was unable to report for work this morning on account of sickness.
C. Doehrmann resumed work at the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning, after an absence on account of sickness.

Louis J. Setter, of the Pennsylvania tank shop, and his wife, are entertaining William Werker, of Chicago, a life-long friend. Mr. Werker is a traveling salesman for a wholesale tobacco house.

Machinist O. D. Shookman is detained at home by the serious illness of his mother. He is employed in the Pennsylvania air brake room.

Machinist John O. Bryant resumed work at the Pennsylvania shops this morning. He was sick three or four days.

John Weidner, stenographer in the office of General Foreman W. B. Madara, of the Pennsylvania machine shop, has gone to Rome City to spend the balance of the week.

Neal Bailey and Henry Galland resumed their duties at the Pennsylvania machine shop this morning. They were off yesterday on account of the funeral of the late Ernest Struchen.

Springmaker A. P. Mueller and Tool Dresser C. E. Rhein, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, are taking a day off to look after some private business.

Mrs. S. S. Deahl, wife of Conductor Deahl, of the Nickel Plate, and her children are spending a week or two with her parents and other relatives at Roanoke.

A. Meler, a freight car builder at the east car shops, had the first finger of his left hand crushed when his hand was caught between two pieces of timber he was handling.

F. A. Austin, new agent of the N. Y. C. & P. D. & W., is busy moving his family and household goods down from Jerome, Mich., their former home. He succeeded A. P. Phillips, who has been advanced to traveling passenger agent.

Miss Flora Bloomer, of the Wayne Knitting mills; Miss Laura Limbach, daughter of the Pennsylvania shopman; Miss Edith Volkman and Miss Celia Miller, of the General Electric works, composed a happy group in the excursion party to the Falls yesterday. They will also visit at Toledo and Cleveland.

A change at the Pennsylvania shops which is a promotion for the two young fellows affected, was the appointment of E. Kamm, a helper under instructions, to take the place of A. Collie in the machine shop, and the appointment of Victor Colney to a similar position to take the place of J. Grable in the same shop.

F. A. Austin, agent of the N. Y. C. & P. D. & W., has been advised by the passenger department that the L. E. & W. will duplicate the excursion to Fort Benjamin Harrison on the last excursion to the training camp will prevail on the next. The special train will leave the north depot at 6 o'clock and reach the camp at 9:40.

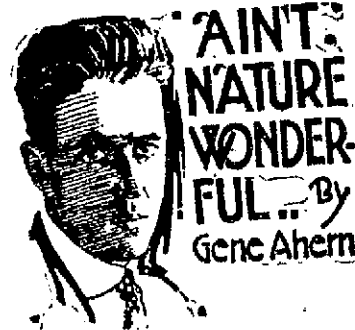

Y. M. C. A. COMMITTEE

WILL MEET FRIDAY

Decision on Building Question is Expected at That Time.

The immediate future of the Fort Wayne Y. M. C. A. will be practically determined at a meeting of the building committee at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, when it will be definitely decided whether the building is to be started at the present time or whether there is to be a delay.

The first annual picnic planned by Y. M. C. A. campaign workers scheduled to have taken place at Lake Maxinkuckee Aug. 25, has been indefinitely postponed because of uncertain railroad facilities. Owing to expected troop movements at that time the railroad refused to give any guarantee of furnishing accommodations for a special excursion.

TRY THE CAMOUFLAGE ON THESE

On that piano next door that's hopped on every time you try to rest. Break in some time when they're away and camouflage it to look like an umbrella stand, or a fireplace.

Too bad, though, there isn't any way to camouflage the warbling of that oh, ho, oh, ha, ha, hee, hee, damsel who thinks she is a Mrs. Caruso.

And that bugle-practicing kid across the street. The best way is to camouflage the bugle with an ax.

The auto that's always kicking up a fuss and is always being repaired and tried out when you're trying to get full weight on your sleep at night and in the morning. Sneak out some midnight, drag it in the alley and camouflage it to look like a pile of garbage, then push it next to the ash can so the garbage chauffeur will haul it away with the rest of the rubbish.

Wonders can be worked with the camouflage art.

Domestic sales of incandescent lamps in 1916 were 145,000,000, which is 31 per cent., or 25,000,000 lamps, greater than 1915 sales. In addition, over 9,000,000 incandescent lamps were exported in 1916, making total sales for last year of 154,000,000 lamps, in comparison with 116,000,000 lamps, the total number of sales that were recorded in 1915.

HOW I LEARNED TO BE A U. S. AVIATOR

Member of Uncle Sam's Flying Squadrons Describes His Sensations.

BY SERGEANT GEORGE DODGE, (United States Aviation School, Mineola, N. Y.)

Before war was declared, I was a Cornell freshman, with no more idea of enlisting than any other college student had at that time.

But as soon as it became certain that we had to fight Germany, I began looking round to see what branch of the service I would rather do my bit in.

It was a cinch from the start that I would go in for aviation. I had been building model airplanes for years, and besides that I was driven by the sense of adventure that is in every fellow of my age—I am less than 20 now—and I knew that all the big adventures of this war would come to the flyers.

Besides, I knew that in the air service you kept your individuality and did not become simply a cog in a big machine, as in some other branches of the service. It's up to you in aviation; but if you do make good, you have the satisfaction of knowing that you did the stunt all by yourself, and there is some chance of the world's knowing it, too. Everybody has heard of Capt. Guynemer and Capt. Ball, the great French and English flyers, but who ever heard of any other officers of their rank in any of the armies?

So I put in my application to learn to fly for Uncle Sam—the second college student's application in the United States, I am told.

I had no fear of the ordinary physical examination; but I will admit I was nervous over the special tests that they give aviation recruits. I had heard all sorts of wild stories about these tests—that they fired revolvers at you to test your nerve, threw cold water on you, stuck needles in your flesh, and all sorts of other stunts that sound like a college fraternity's hazing.

I went into the examining surgeon's office with about the same feelings that I would go to my own shooting. I was so wrought up by these stories. But I soon managed to collect my nerve when I saw the business-like way in which the surgeon went about his work.

He seemed to mark my body off in sections and give each section such a thorough examination that I am sure if I had anything wrong with me it was just a starter; what they were really after was my eyes and my ears, and with my ears I include my balance apparatus, which I have since learned are the little semi-circular canals that are a part of the ear structure.

They stuck me up on a high chair and squirted first hot and then cold water into my ear. I found out later that in this test they watched my eyes to see whether they acted normally, turning toward the ear that was being irrigated when warm water was used and away from it when the water was cold.

Then they put me on a thing like a piano stool and whirled me around until I was dizzy, and watched to see which way I would fall when the stool stopped turning. If I fell away from the direction of rotation, I was all right.

Next they took off my shoes and made me walk back and forth blindfolded, to see whether my balance and sense of direction was good.

It was certainly a weird performance, but nothing like the rough stuff that I expected them to try on me. I couldn't understand what all these blindfolded tests were for, but since I have been up in the clouds where you can't see anything, I can understand that all these tests really were a miniature reproduction of just what an aviator has to go through whenever he gets into a cloud or has to fly in the dark.

Advertising in The Sentinel Lowers the Cost of Selling

This is not a time for haphazard business methods.

Clear thinking must convince you that advertising lowers the cost of selling and consequently it lowers the cost of a product to the ultimate consumer.

Advertising is the greatest price reducer of business. It brings increased demand and thus allows for economies of large production and broad scale buying. This decreases proportionate overhead. Advertising is equally effective for distributing or retailing. There is no honest product whose selling cost and hence its selling price can not be reduced by advertising of some kind. And there are very few propositions that can not be profitably merchandised through The Sentinel advertising.

The Sentinel realizes the waste of carrying advertising that does not bring profitable results. This is not a time for careless business. If The Sentinel believes your business can be helped through its advertising columns, every effort will be made through the soliciting force to show you the merits of Sentinel publicity. On the other hand if The Sentinel is convinced that its advertising will not pay you, The Sentinel will tell you so just as frankly.

Sentinel expert advertising men are at your service and ready at all times to help you solve your merchandising problems. Do not hesitate to call for one of them.

TELLS WHY WE HAVE VINELESS POTATOES

Rev. L. W. Spayd, of St. Joe, Says He Has Had Potatoes Without Vines.

Rev. L. W. Spayd, of the Christian church of St. Joe, writes to The Sentinel and says he can explain why there is such a thing as vineless potatoes. He states he saw the article about the tubers without vines in The Sentinel on July 6 and has the following explanation to give:
“To me the vineless potato is no longer a mystery. I grew several square rods of them in 1914. Planted in March, we ate them by May 15; then teased our neighbors that we were smart enough to beat them to new home grown potatoes by a month.
Of course, ‘all of them were from Missouri and had to be shown,’ but we had the goods, and all of us alike queried much as to the cause of their growing thus.
“It was some time before I found a man who could explain the mystery.
He was an old farmer and had seen them several times. He said: ‘You planted potatoes every eye of which had put forth sprouts one or more times before planting, all of which sprouts you had rubbed off from the potatoes before planting them.’ Sure enough, I had. Having no cellar,
I kept my potatoes in a warm room up stairs. As a drought had prematurely ripened them, the year before, they put forth vigorous sprouts in January, which I rubbed off. Again I rubbed off all sprouts from them put forth in February. I planted three square rods with them in March. As only now and then a weak, spindling vine came up, I set the patch to to-matatoes, after digging out the vineless potatoes in May.”
“I again had some vineless potatoes this year. Last year’s dry spell dried up my vines by July 10, this ripening my Early Ohio’s prematurely again. I sprouted these once before planting, most of them twice—hence had a few vineless potatoes. If every eye in the potato you plant has twice put forth sprouts and the sprouts have twice been rubbed off from the potato, it has lost its power to send forth more sprouts after planting. It can only send out rootlets on which it will grow potatoes, perhaps never larger than hen eggs. If every eye in a potato has put forth vigorous sprouts once, and had them removed before planting, I doubt that you will even then have other than vineless potatoes.
“The fact is, we seldom rub off sprouts from every eye of a potato when sprouting them. You will find eyes left in a potato, after a first and a second sprouting, which have not yet put forth sprouts, but which do so after planting them.
“This fact accounts why we so seldom have vineless potatoes. I have now had them twice under similar circumstances; once from Rural New Yorkers, once from Early Ohio’s. In each case, a long dry spell prematurely ripened the potatoes. In each case, having no cellar, I kept them in warm rooms to keep them from freezing. In each case I sprouted them twice before planting. But as more of them had unsprouted eyes left when planted, I had fewer vineless potatoes this year.
“With these facts in hand, as a basis for experimentation, let others make further tests.”

CHINA IN THE WAR.

The seventeenth nation to cast its lot with the allies of the entente, China has declared war against Germany and Austria-Hungary. The decision of China to become belligerent is no surprise. It has been pending and expected for some time and comes belated mainly because it furnished an issue upon which the republican government split and opened the doors to the coup that resulted in the brief restoration of the Manchu dynasty.

China may not prove to be a great war asset to the entente. At the outset she becomes at least an added financial liability upon the powers grouped against Germany and her allies. She has no army worth speaking of; no navy that can appreciably strengthen the nations with whom she fights. In man power she is almost illimitable such as her man power is, though there is likely to be no great haste and no very sincere desire to draw upon that undeveloped, untrained and doubtful resource of the great oriental republic. Of two other resources China can furnish abundance. She can provide labor, as already she has done to some extent in Europe, and she can provide food. Of her America will require neither and in respect of labor will not have it at any incurred risk of political and industrial disturbance.

Properly trained and disciplined, there are some elements in China out of which good fighting material can be made. Yet there does not appear to be any present need or any prospect of need for it. With the United States entering fresh into the conflict and some hope that Russia's vast resources of men will again be available, there does not disclose itself any necessity for bringing the Chinese into the European theater of war. There are some reasons that are powerful if not insuperable why Chinese fighting forces should be kept out of the war in Europe, though they might be with much less objection employed in Western Asia against the Turks.

China's declaration of belligerency is most immediately notable for the spectacular element it adds to the world conflict in joining half of the continent of Asia and one-fourth of the world's population to the mighty coalition of free peoples against the two great surviving autocracies on the planet. The marshaled strength of Germany, able still to hold out against a coalition so vast and potential, amazes and may well-high affright. A power so organized, developed and keyed to the single business of war and directed and driven by ambitions against which it conceives no considerations of morals or humanity must be allowed to stand, itself furnishes the abundant reason for trying to make the world safe for democracy. How far China can help in or is desirable as an aid to the establishment of this security raises a question.

MAKING AN END OF WASTE.

The food grains and certain food roots will "keep." Wheat, barley, rye and Indian maize, properly stored, will preserve their sweetness and quality for long periods. Potatoes, with good care, can be made to last from the gathering time through winter and spring to the maturity of early varieties. Cold storage makes possible the keeping in natural state of some fruits—mainly apples—and some vegetables. But most fruits and many vegetables must be kept by preservative processes.

It is probably that from a fourth to a half of the quickly perishable fruits and vegetables grown in this country go to waste because they are not immediately in demand and no care is taken to preserve them. This means the wastage of a prodigious quantity of good food. To conserve these vast resources that now mean so much that is vital to the country under stress of war the women of America have been implored by the government and by various patriotic agencies unofficially co-operating with the government to do what lies in their power to prevent this year the annually recurring waste of inconceivable quantities of foodstuffs. The food control law under the administration of Director Hoover will do much in the matter of regulating supplies and forestalling rapacities as well as enforcing conservation so far as the great staple storage crops are concerned, but statute law and legal regulations cannot go far in this country to compel anybody to preserve fruit and vegetables. The law can to some extent prevent waste of foodstuffs by limiting supplies, as has been done in Germany, but it cannot do much against that passive but not less wanton waste that ensues from neglect and failure to preserve the immense surpluses of a great variety of perishable food crops.

There must be voluntary service by the women to make sure that there shall be an end to waste and in its place an increase of stored food by preserving what can be saved in that way. The women of the United States are to be registered in a great army against waste. They will be asked to sign cards giving their pledge to conserve perishable food crops and to practice sensible economies in their kitchens. Conservation of food cannot be made a surety without employment of system and it is to establish system that the women's pledge cards are distributed for signature. These cards will give the newly created food department a fairly accurate index of the food resources of the country and will enable the department to carry on its work with greater intelligence and effect.

The women of the country have it in their power to create one of the nation's greatest elements of defensive preparedness and at the same time to inject into the domestic life of the whole people a now scandalously absent virtue of economy and abhorrence of waste. This people needs the lesson that enforced practice of economy and conservation will bring into its domestic life and the mobilization of the women to serve their country in war will do much to found permanently the morals of frugality and saving.

THE NEW PEACE PROPOSAL.

The peace proposals put forth by Pope Benedict have not made a convincing impression in allied capitals. The suspicion has been spontaneous and almost unanimous that most probably Austria and possibly Germany furnished the inspiration of the effort to bring the world's calamitous strife to an ending.

Notwithstanding this distrust, it is not unlikely that something of use may come out of the pontiff's proposals. It gives the German alliance an opportunity to state its aims and indicate tentative terms, which if brought about would be more than has been made definite at any time heretofore when the subject of peace has had brief innings in the world's notice and the belligerents' discussions.

"No annexations, no indemnities," the peace slogan that has had more vogue than acceptance for some months, seems to be the boiled down expression of what the holy father has in mind as the bases for the peace he so strongly urges and the hope of which most surely he cherishes above all other concerns at this time. Restorations in general, as proposed by the pope, mean of course Belgium, among other things, but it is hardly conceivable that a restored Belgium that is not also a repaired and in some degree a recompensed Belgium can be put forward as an example of a peace with justice. However, that is a detail.

The question that overshadows, so far as America is concerned, is the future security of democracy in the world and some founded and dependable guarantee against another outbreak of war madness when there shall have been recuperation from this strife's prostrations. The United States is in this war for the assertion and maintenance of its rights and the security of its future—nothing else, and it must be hoped, nothing less. The status quo ante would leave America pretty well out of the settlement. We are not throwing in our millions of men and our billions of treasure for any result of that texture and color.

Judgment will have to be put in abeyance as to the pope's proposals until they are clarified by something coming from the Germanic powers. Meanwhile the peace prospect is not yet luminous.

Governor Goodrich is getting nearer and nearer to the sticking point of resolution to have the Indiana legislature in session and the coal barons before that august tribunal for hearing and judgment. It ought not to take much time to dispose of that, if the purpose is to get coal abundantly and reasonably to industry and hearthstone in this state.

Several hundred new generals have been created and a proportionate contingent of new colonels will have to come on. But the war's end will disclose more colonels several to one than ever will wade a trench or smell a gas attack. We raise 'em here; they're born, not made or commissioned.

Food Boss Hoover is getting about his work in a slow and settled fashion that argues more for solid results than for spectacular display and the usual prices.

The beauty about the income tax is that you have to have the income before they can take part of it away from you. The joy of immaturity has its limitations.

Dead Letters.

Dead letters—and a breath of days ago. As if some sacred, spiced tomb of love were broken in by vandal memory—And the quaint, wondrous trinkets of a soul laid before eyes that make the jewels seem more bright beneath a film of silent tears.

Sweet phrases of a murmuring now stilled! Dear words, that were the speech of growing hope Once whispered by those lips, that are but heard In ghostly echoes in the catacombs And buried caverns of an empty heart.

This hand that links the message of a love Now lifeless, but embalmed in the past—Fair-fashioned lines, that bound invisibly A phantom welcome to a barren hope—About the altars of thy promises Drift the cold ashes of my sacrifice!

FOOD CONTROL BOARDS IN EVERY TOWN MEANS RELIEF FOR CONSUMER

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

Every state, county, township and municipality in the United States is to have an official food administration organization working hand in hand with the national food administration under Herbert C. Hoover. Hoover recognizes the fight for food control as the people's fight and believes that to get maximum results the organization must reach directly to the people, producers and consumers alike, in every nook and corner of the country. To this end the work is to be decentralized. State boards of food administration will be established in each state. These will further decentralize by organizing county boards and these county boards will direct local organizations in cities, townships and villages.

Through these organizations the food administration will be in direct touch at all times with food conditions in every part of the country. It will be in position to know of shortages the moment they occur and to know of excess supplies to fill these shortages.

It will be able to check prices in any section against those in other sections and to tell at once just how much prices have been forced up at every step in the marketing chain.

Supplies are short or when prices are unwarrantably high, the food administration, through its power to regulate distribution and force preferential shipments, may move in quantities of supplies from points where there is a surplus, relieving the shortage and bringing down price.

DR. STELZLE TELLS WHY SOME WORKERS IN SLUMS GO DOWN

BY REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

"Inside of two years social workers become just like those among whom they live, in manners, taste and general deportment."

Prosperity and fatness oozed out of the man who flippantly made this remark to a group equally self-sufficient and comfortable-looking.
He thought he knew all about social workers. I could have introduced him to one of the gentlest, most refined women in his town—a college graduate—who had spent six years lifting out of the ruck and the muck of life any number of the superior gentleman's fellowcitizens—while he had never turned a hand to help them. To a certain extent he was responsible for putting them there.

And there are other social workers who, while giving the best they've got to those less fortunate, not only retain their original culture, but acquire a depth of character the portly gentleman knows nothing about.
And yet—there's a suggestion of truth in the remark. It's no easy job to live year after year in the midst of depravity and come out clean. It requires unusual grit.

When it is remembered that the social worker's home is never free from the atmosphere—and sometimes it's more tangible than atmosphere—of the slum and the slouch of despair, in which his charges live, when it is recalled that his salary is usually so pitifully small that he is deprived of those things which are the heritage of every person of refinement—especially the woman social worker, when it is persistently forced in upon him that his life has become part of the life of those he serves—it's no wonder some of them go down to the depths.

It's just the result of the reaction which seems almost inevitable.
Yes—there's danger that social workers may land where the sneering snob says they all do. But if they do it's partly his fault. For if he were doing his share by giving cash and counsel, the task of the social worker might be so brightened and lightened that there wouldn't be the same temptation to slip into the muck beside which he stands to keep others from falling in.

To a large extent, especially in the handling of fruits, vegetables and other perishables, the whole work can be handled by state food organization. The Cincinnati markets, for instance, might be glutted with potatoes at a time when Cleveland was short. The county reports to the state body would show this condition at once. The state organization could order the transfer, by fast freight, of a dozen cars of potatoes from Cincinnati to Cleveland and within 24 hours the potato market in both cities would be relieved, supply regulated and prices stabilized.

Wherever such regulation is possible through switching of supplies within a state, it will be unnecessary to call upon the national organization for help.
A glance at the daily reports from the different states will show where surpluses and shortages exist, what foodstuffs must be moved, and from where, to maintain an even supply and steady prices.

With proper distribution, such as can be forced under the powers granted Hoover in the food bill, not only will great supplies of foodstuffs be saved which now either never reach market or spoil in glutted markets, but prices will be stabilized and lowered through the greater certainty of a steady, dependable supply.

Appointment of the state food boards probably will be made within the next 10 days. These boards will at once get busy with county and local organizations, and it is expected Sept. 1 will see the formation of official food administration branches in every city, town and township in the nation.

ONLY TWENTY YEARS AGO.

(Greenville, Ill., Advocate.)

Editor Swann, of the Pike County Republican, last week grew reminiscences. He discovered a wonderful change has taken place in the world in a short time. Here are some of the things that were and were not twenty years ago:

Ladies wore bustles.
Operations were rare.
Nobody swatted the fly.
Nobody has seen a silo.
Nobody had appendicitis.
Nobody wore white shoes.
Nobody sprayed orchards.
Cream was five cents a pint.
Most young men had "livery bills."
Candelabras were muskmelons.
You never heard of a "Tin Lizzie."
Doctors wanted to see your tongue.
Milk-shake was a favorite drink.
Advertisers did not tell the truth.
Nobody cared for the price of gasoline.
Farmers came to town for their mail.
The hired girl drew one-fifty a week.
The butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver.
Folks said pneumatic tires were a

Nobody "listened in" on a telephone. There were no sane Fourth's nor electric meters.
Strawstacks were burned instead of baled.

Publishing a country newspaper was not a business.
People thought English sparrows were "birds."

Jules Verne was the only convert to the submarine.
You stuck tubes in your ears to hear a phonograph, and it cost a dime.
Infantile paralysis was spinal meningitis, appendicitis was inflammation of the bowels, and tuberculosis was consumption. Babies died of "summer complaint."

HER TESTIMONIAL.

[Providence Journal.]

A bride who was deserted a fortnight after her marriage has exhibited a letter from her husband, explaining that he married her to escape the army and has now joined the army to escape her.

THE BIGGEST GUN.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

The corn crop of the United States is to be the largest ever. None of those big guns in Europe is as big as that.

FROM THE SENTINEL PAGES 25 YEARS AGO

Yesterday afternoon the engineers set the final stakes for the grading and completion of the water reservoir south of town.

Mrs. William Meyers will accompany her daughter as far as Boston, where she will remain until Mr. Meyers returns from Europe.

R. E. Richards, formerly stenographer at the Bass works, will go to Chicago next week, where he has a profitable position offered him.

F. M. Randall, city civil engineer, who has been very ill for some days past, is much improved in health and expects to be out again soon.

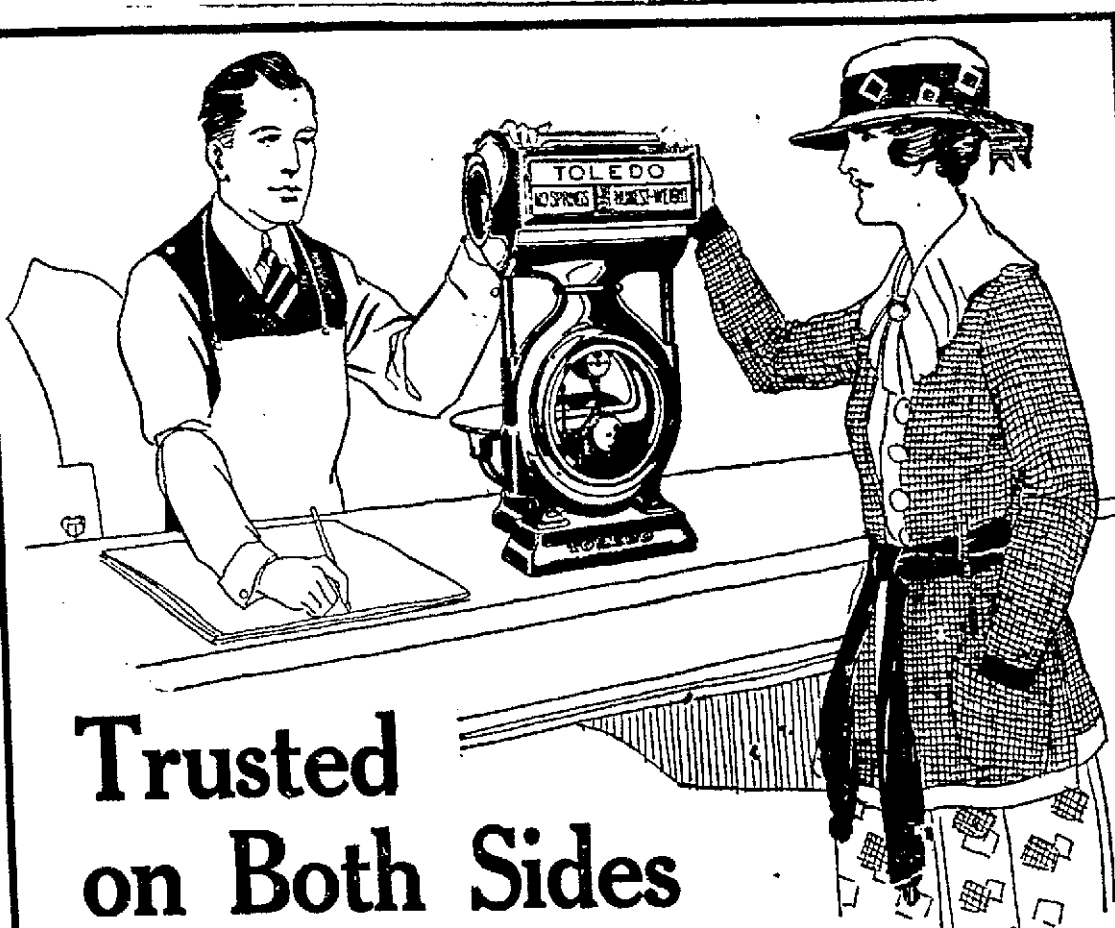

The street car company has issued the following advertisement: "Horses for sale cheap." Mr. Meyers came to Fort Wayne from Germany in 1855 and has since been connected with the drug establishment of Meyer, Gros & Co.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Logan left Saturday for Chicago. From there they will go to Benton Harbor, where Mrs. Logan will remain for several weeks.

James M. Barrett, after having spent three weeks with his family at Petoskey, has returned home. His family will not leave there until the end of the summer.

The nightly musical strains on East Jefferson street have become so heart rending to the neighborhood that some of the residents are offering to dispose of their homes at a great sacrifice so as to get a few peaceful nights' rest in their declining years.

Henry J. Meyers died at 10:45 o'clock this morning. Mr. Meyers came to Fort Wayne from Germany in 1855 and has since been connected with the drug establishment of Meyer, Gros & Co. He was a prominent member of Emanuel's Lutheran church and always took a leading part in all movements towards the advancement of the church. Frank J. Gruber, the cigar manufacturer, usually smiling and pleasant, wore a mournful look all day yesterday and his friends wondered what was the matter with him. The secret of his woe-begone expression was that his mocking bird died Sunday night. Frank was deeply attached to the bird, as, indeed, he is to all pets, and mourns its death greatly. L. A. Worsh, the optician, assisted at the funeral ceremonies, which are said to have been very elaborate and pathetic.

Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus off with fingers.

No humbug! You truly can lift off every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet without one bit of pain. A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying freezone o. afterwards. Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go without causing one twinge of pain or soreness. Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle of freezone on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice

YOUNG COUPLE HAVE QUIET WEDDING

MR. J. HENRY CHAPPELL.

MRS. J. HENRY CHAPPELL.

The marriage of Miss Rosella Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Rhodes, of 1406 Winter street, to Mr. James Henry Chappell, of this city, took place very quietly at 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning at the parsonage of the First M. E. church. Rev. A. G. Neal performed the ceremony and Miss Jessie Pitcher and Mr. Tourist W. Thompson were bridesmaids and groomsmen. For the wedding the bride wore a blue tulle dress with trimmings of white and a touch of silver and a white hat of tailored effect. The bride wore a corsage of bride roses. Miss Pitcher was dressed in a blue silk gown and her hat corresponded, while a bouquet of pink roses lent a contrasting color that was exceedingly pretty. The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to the immediate relatives. The bride's table was garlanded with smilax and gladioli and white roses, as well as a handsomely fringed bride's cake were the conspicuous decorations. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Chappell left on a trip to Ohio and Kentucky points and will stop in Cincinnati and in Oakland City, Ky., with Mr. Chappell's parents. GERMAN PRESS PANS EMPEROR ON WILSON NOTE

Copenhagen, Aug. 15.—Publication of Emperor William's telegram to President Wilson in the memoirs of ex-Ambassador Gerard and the lame and belated attempt at explanation made by the semi-official Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung calls forth criticism in the German press of what is termed the German emperor's irresponsible conduct of the foreign affairs of the empire.

The various Berlin newspapers comment on the system which permits a sovereign to pass upon such a proposal from a neutral power and to draft an important state document without consultation with a responsible minister or even without the necessary record subsequently being made.

But two of the claims were granted. A number of appeals from coal miners asking that they be exempted because of their work was continued. The miners say their work in the mines is more important than their work would be in the armies. The board continued

By BETTY BROWN.

About once a year the editor asks me to write something about men's styles. I find the new fall modes for men appeal more than ordinarily this year to the feminine eye. The styles, though smart and brisk, are still serviceable and sober enough to be devoid of flashiness. The war seems to have "spiced them up." They are clean cut, and will make the wearer look alert. This practical business suit is in brown serge, with invisible stripe. The patch pockets and bone buttons lend distinction. An echo from the front is the adapted trench coat for men of fashion. It is roomy and convenient, easy to slip on and off, and comfortable on the shoulders. The model shown is in brown twill serge, fastened with bone buttons and relieved by deep pockets marked by two rows of stitching. The golf enthusiast will be pleased with the clean lines of this suit of Connemara tweed. The coat, though roomy, is well fitted. A plaid cap tops it off. Button shoes are the smart fall mode for both men and women.

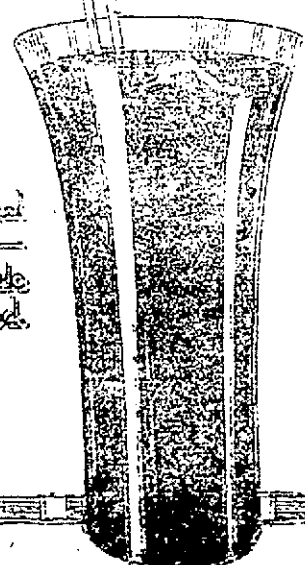

You appreciate an iced drink during the warm days of summer!

Why not let it be healthful as well as refreshing?

Try Iced Postum

Prepare Postum in the usual way; then cool with ice—adding sugar, and a little lemon or cream as preferred.

FISH WEAR FURS.

Verne, N. H.—Gideon Glow has the only fur-covered goldfish in the world. He will exhibit them at the Verne-co. fair this fall. "It happened this way."

said Glow. "My young son got to filling their tank with ice water. It almost killed them. But the idea struck me to accustom them gradually to the colder water. Now the tenth generation stands pure ice water and has a full coat of fur."

CORN ON THE COB.

Atlas, Mo.—The divorce case of Beulah Bixley against John Bixley brought out the fact that she would neither allow him to eat corn on the cob, nor cut off the corn for him. Bixley charged she told him to eat with the pigs, if he wanted corn. The court refused her petition, and granted the husband a divorce on a cross-petition alleging cruelty.

PUZZLE DRAFT BOARD.

Toiney, N. M.—The Brown brothers, twins, married Jessie and Jennie Du Lang, also twins, and a child was born to one of the couples. The draft exemption board is willing to exempt the father of the dependent child, but neither of the four will reveal the facts, and both men claim exemption. They live in a double house, and the board is unable to make sure it enlists the man refused exemption, even after the child's parentage is established.

MELON IS PROPHET.

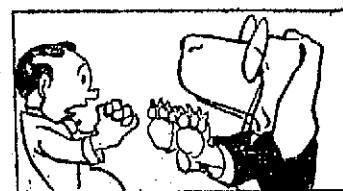

Boston, Mass.—On quartering a watermelon at a local restaurant, Mary Maguire, waitress, found the seeds on the face of one of the segments of melon spelled the date March 18, 1918. Miss Maguire, engaged to a Boston grocery driver, thinks the date refers to her marriage. The restaurant proprietor believes it is the date of the ending of the war.

WISE DOG BARKS.

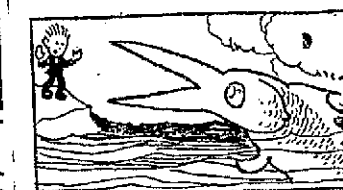

Atlanta, Ga.—An educated dog at a vaudeville house in this city refused to play his turn. The most competent local veterinarian pronounced the dog in perfect health and the owner and trainer was at his wits' ends. Finally it was discovered that the dog, whose contract provided headline position, had been placed second to a comedy sketch. The dog would not perform until new programs were printed.

DISCOVER NEW FISH.

Archdale, Del.—Coast fishermen have discovered a new type of fish, which they have named the submarine. Nets were brought up with the meshes cut, and hauls of the fishermen were next to nothing. Finally Ezra Jones caught two of the submarine fish. They are equipped with a shearing device of bone, similar to the wire net shears of the German U-boats and are doing much damage.

HE CURES INSOMNIA.

Boston, Mass.—After going practically sleepless for three years, Michael Horgen has cured his insomnia by having a special bed built. It is hung from the ceiling by weights, and when it is lifted up and let down slowly by machinery Horgen is able to sleep. The bed was built on the advice of a famous nerve specialist. Horgen has been an elevator operator for twenty years.

SOMETHING IN A NAME.

Tabor, Okla.—Carl Morris, midget named after the famous giant prizefighter, was arrested here for disturbing the peace. His parents, who hoped he would follow his namesake, had finally put him with a circus sideshow in disgust when he weighed only fifty pounds at 16 years. Before his arrest he had whipped the fat man and the wild man from Borneo. His parents have taken him to New York to train him to enter the ring for the flyweight championship.

EARNING WAR FUNDS.

Bar Harbor, Me.—Sheriff Ames released the women arrested in the gambling raid on the Ladies' Afternoon Bridge club when they testified that by members' agreement all winnings were to be turned over by the winners to the Red Cross. Future meetings of the club, however, will have to be held under the supervision of a court officer, to see that the pledge is kept.

A DIG AT CONGRESS.

Congress Lake, O.—Residents at this place are going to petition for a change in the name of their postoffice.

"We find," said the chairman of the protest committee, "that congress is becoming synonymous with delay and shiftiness, and maybe even worse. We think some congressman should be thrown into the lake, but not our lake. It still has a good reputation."

AN HONEST PIGEON.

Stella, Mont.—Gervaise Nichols says it's true about casting your bread upon the waters. He stopped to feed a tame pigeon in the city hall park and found about its neck his wife's diamond ring, which disappeared while sunning on the porch after a thorough washing a week before. But the ring wouldn't come off the pigeon's neck and Nichols is keeping his feathered benefactor till it dies, refusing to kill the honest bird.

Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth, so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothen and beautifier.

Just try it. Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Advertisement.

ASK ANYONE WHO HAS USED IT.

There are families who always aim to keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house for use in case it is needed, and find that it is not only a good investment but saves them no end of suffering. As to its reliability, ask anyone who has used it.—Advertisement.

NIGHT BOYS GIVEN CHANCE

They Will Be Given an Opportunity to Register Wednesday Afternoon.

MANY NOT SHOWING THE PROPER SPIRIT

Percentage of Enrollments in the Reserve Found to Be Too Small.

The enrollment of boys who work at night in the United States Boys' Working Reserve will take place from 2 to 5 Wednesday at the court house in the office of D. O. McDonald, county superintendent of schools. H. O. Georges has been appointed by the general director of the work, A. L. McDonald, to take charge.

The work of registration has proceeded fast in the four districts of the city since Monday, but those in charge of the work here say that the boys of Fort Wayne have not shown the right spirit in enrolling in the movement. There seems to be some misunderstanding, according to Director McDonald as to the work which the boys will do. No boys will be sent away from home by the government; in fact, they will not be sent anywhere by the government, but will simply be informed at various times by bulletins and by special notices of places where they may obtain employment consistent with the government's purposes. Director McDonald is anxious that the boys of the city do not fall behind the example set by their older brothers in the recent past in the various national enterprises such as the registration for conscription, Red Cross, Food Relief, and other movements.

Registration Tuesday night brought in 319 boys of whom only a small percent enrolled for the war work. The figures on the four districts Tuesday night follow: District No. 1, 108 registered, 11 enrolled; District No. 2, 57 registered, 2 enrolled; District No. 3, 66 registered, 3 enrolled; District No. 4, 88 registered, 6 enrolled.

Those in charge of the work here are at a loss to explain this situation as it has not been the experience of other places that such a small proportion enroll out of the number registered. It is felt that there has been some misunderstanding somewhere as to the exact purpose of the Boys' Working Reserve, although it has been stated many times, according to Mr. McDonald that the boys will, in no case, be taken away from their parents and in all cases of work being done it will be voluntary.

Annual Meeting of Printers Resumes Work in Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 15.—Delegates to the sixty-third annual convention of the International Typographical union today resumed business sessions after a delay spent in sight seeing.

Much business will be considered before the close of the convention Saturday, including the proposed repeal of the provision which permits a member of but ten years' standing to be placed on the pension roll at the age of seventy; a proposal to cancel the power of local unions to make contracts and give the same to a national committee; plans to hold the convention annually in Indianapolis, with the exception of every tenth year, when it would be held in Colorado Springs, will be before the convention, as well as a proposal to eliminate all social features from succeeding annual meetings.

M'NAGNY RESIGNS AS

JOINT REPRESENTATIVE

Capt. Phil McNagney, of the officers' reserve corps at Indianapolis, following his commissioning as an officer, has tendered his resignation as joint representative for Allen and Whitley counties. It is not known at present whether the people of Allen and Whitley counties will desire an election to fill Mr. McNagney's unexpired term in the face of a special session. Senator Marion H. Maston represents Whitley county. The house of representatives is largely republican, and an election would make but little difference after having caused considerable expense. The appointment of Captain McNagney to his military office made it necessary that he resign as a state official.

FOOD SITUATION NOT FULLY REALIZED HERE

Committee Grants Additional Sum to Carry on Conservation.

A continual talk of a drop in prices, the inability of the people of Allen county to realize the seriousness of the food situation, and a feeling of dependency on the national government has resulted in a lessening of interest in the food conservation campaign. Frank Hilgemann, chairman of the local food relief committee declared Tuesday, in substantiating the action of the relief committee in appropriating an additional $1,000 to carry on the work of the campaign.

"The people of Fort Wayne are not indifferent to the situation," said Mr. Hilgemann, "they simply do not realize its gravity. There is a continued talk of a drop in prices. I know of few things more improbable—unless the people come to their own rescue."

"The most practical and indeed the cheapest way to combat the cost of living is to make the ground give up food. No individual at Washington, no committee of congress, can change the situation unless individuals render their full support. If the people of Fort Wayne are waiting for congress or Mr. Hoover to come to their rescue without themselves lending a helping hand, there is to be a sad awakening," Mr. Hilgemann concluded.

A movement to obtain the support of the entire citizenry of the city is soon to be undertaken by the National Food Relief committee. The National Food Relief committee has had blanks sent out to enroll the women of the city in the campaign. These cards have been received here and will be distributed with the assistance of the boy scouts.

Summary of the Day's War News

The British and French returned to the attack in northern France and Belgium last night, and preliminary reports indicate they have won considerable successes. The principal blow was struck by the British on a front of about 4,000 yards from the northwestern outskirts of Lens to the Bois Houp, northeast of Loos. General Haig announces that his troops carried the German first lines at all points and are making satisfactory progress. Hill 70, a German stronghold northwest of Lens which dominates the city, has been stormed by the Canadians.

Since the beginning of the attack on the northern end of the Franco-Belgian line which apparently has been selected by the British and French for their principal efforts in the summer campaign, the Canadians have been making steady progress around Lens, driving slowly into the outskirts into this important center.

The new attack on the front immediately north of Lens evidently is designed to close around the city from the north. If successful this operation may compel the Germans to evacuate the town without a direct attack on it, with the heavy sacrifices such a move probably would involve. The French attack was made near the coast in the vicinity of Dixmude. The official communication from Paris reports good progress west of the Dixmude road. London also announces gains by entente troops in the sector north of Ypres.

Active operations continue on the Alsace front. The French positions between Hurbelise and Craonne were bombarded heavily during the night, but the Germans did not renew the infantry actions which have cost them such heavy losses in the last few weeks in their vain efforts to expel the French from commanding positions.

Former Emperor Nicholas of Russia and his family are being removed from Tsarskoe-Selo to a secret destination. The decision to transfer them was reached by the council of ministers last month for "military and political" reasons.

The Russian-Bulgarian forces have been compelled to yield further ground on the southern Rumanian front. Today's official communication from Petrograd reports the occupation by the enemy of a height west of Oana in southwestern Moldavia, where the Austro-German forces are endeavoring to outflank the Russian army to the south.

AFFIDAVIT FILED FOR BOY'S ARREST

Civil Authorities Have Jurisdiction Over Carl Johnson.

An affidavit was filed with the police Wednesday afternoon for the arrest of Carl Johnson, member of a local military organization following word received from the war department that civil authorities have jurisdiction over the man.

Johnson was the lad who stole an automobile from the street in front of the Anthony hotel last Saturday evening and was arrested a short time afterward. The captain of the company of which he was a member demanded his release and it was granted by Judge H. Waveland Kerr at a special session held Sunday morning.

The prosecutor through Major Thomas F. Ryan, of the regular army recruiting station, telegraphed the war department for a ruling on the case. The police were looking for the young man Wednesday afternoon.

PRICES REACT WITH PEACE DISCUSSIONS

Wall Street Stocks Have Eccentric Course on War-End Talk.

New York, Aug. 15.—Peace negotiations were again a factor at the opening of today's market, stocks and allied specialties recording further reactions of 1 to 2 points. Ralls and coppers were dull. The market became irregular before the close of the first half hour.

Alternate rallies and reversals marked the latter dealings, trading indicating greater caution pending more definite developments in the foreign situation. Shipments and Industrials were the sustaining features, United States Steel gaining a point from its minimum. Maxwell common and second preferred yielded 2 to 3 points on the suspended dividends. Liberty bonds sold at 99.96 to 99.98.

WILL HEAR APPEAL CASES

T. J. Logan Chosen to Represent Government in Exemption Claims.

APPOINTED FOR DISTRICT NO. 1

Judge Sol A. Wood Named Some Days Ago for District No. 3.

United States Commissioner T. J. Logan has been designated by Governor James P. Goodrich to act as representative of the federal government in appealing cases of exemptions granted by local boards in behalf of INTEREST OF HIS NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

Notice of his appointment was received Wednesday from Judge Eachbach, state attorney in connection with District No. 1, Fort Wayne, east of Calhoun street and north of the Pennsylvania tracks. This appointment is the same as that recently made putting Judge Sol A. Wood in charge of that work for district No. 3, south of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

The duty of the federal government representative in each district will be to take appeals on behalf of the federal government from the district board from the exemptions or discharges by the local boards. Such appeals, it is stated in the instructions received by Commissioner Logan, should be taken in all cases where it is the belief of the commissioner or responsible persons in the community that particular exemptions or discharges are not in the best interest of the nation. Under the instructions of the provost marshal general, Mr. Logan is also authorized and empowered to administer oaths necessary in the administration of the selective service law.

Just who will be appointed to represent the government in the two remaining districts in this city and also for the county board is a matter of contemplation, as no appointments have yet been made. These positions are being conferred on the responsible men of the community.

Colleges Favor Continuing Football in Spite of War

Coaches Are Almost Unanimous in Desire to Go On With Athletics.

BY PAUL PURMAN.

What is to happen to college football this season?

With the first officers' reserve camp filled with college athletes, with many more applying for the second camps and the draft taking more, the question of continuing football this fall naturally arises.

To find the attitude toward football I wrote to coaches and athletic directors of a number of representative colleges asking:

(1) Whether football would be continued this fall.

(2) The number of eligible men who would not return to college on account of the war.

(3) Whether the freshman rule would be abolished in order to fill the depleted ranks of athletes.

Letters received from a number of coaches convince me that while the football squads of practically every college will be seriously depleted, athletics will be continued and the rules governing college sport before the war will not be changed.

The following coaches wrote expressing their views on the status of college sports: Fred J. Murphy, Northwestern University; Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt; E. J. Stewart, University of Nebraska; J. W. Helsman, Georgia University of Technology; Fielding H. Yost, University of Michigan; T. E. Jones, University of Wisconsin; E. O. Stehm, University of Indiana; H. F. Schulte, University of Missouri; A. W. Mayser, Iowa State University; C. A. O'Donnell, Purdue University; J. W. White, Ohio State University; A. H. Sharpe, Cornell; R. C. Zupke, University of Illinois; and Glenn S. Warner, University of Pittsburgh.

The list represents practically all of the big mid-western colleges, several colleges in the south and east and expresses the sentiments in the western conference, the Missouri Valley conference and the southern conference in addition to the situation in unattached colleges of the east.

The survey shows that with the exception of Yale, Harvard, Princeton, West Point and Annapolis, practically all schedules will be carried out as planned.

Other large eastern colleges, Dartmouth, Georgetown, Brown, Pennsylvania, Penn State, etc., will go on with their schedules filling dates broken by the "Big Three" or the government schools with dates with smaller colleges or with intercollegiate games.

Football, of course, will not be up to the standards of other years.

Many teams will be made up of men, who in normal years, would have no chance to play regularly. Letter men from last year will be scarce. Stars will be absent. Practically every All-American player from 1916 has joined the colors.

Robert C. Zupke, coach at Illinois, meets this issue philosophically.

"Since most of the universities will face the same situation we are facing," he writes, "we will be no worse off than they."

"If eleven men are left in school we will play football," Warner and Mayser declare.

The question of abolishing the freshman rule to provide more players met opposition in almost every case.

C. A. O'Donnell, the Purdue coach, and Glenn Warner are the only coaches openly supporting it.

"I would like to see the freshman rule abolished," O'Donnell wrote, "although I am not hopeful it will be. I believe this year's teams will be much weaker, even with freshmen playing, and if we are to keep the interest of the students and the public we must furnish at least fair brand of football. Under the present unsatisfactory conditions, when football in 1918 is extremely doubtful, I do not believe any college would permit proselytizing, which seems to be the chief objection to abolishing the rule."

But the attitude of most of the coaches toward the freshman rule is expressed by Coach Wilce, of Ohio State.

"We stand absolutely for the retention of the freshman rule," he wrote. "We believe in real standards and decency in sport."

Several colleges which earlier advocated abandoning football changed their plans when President Wilson advised the retention of college sport this summer.

How Invalid Woman Fan "Sees" Game—Score by Carrier—Hubby Sends Bird at Each Inning

(By Linton K. Starr).

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15.—Ladies and gentlemen, meet the champion baseball fan of America and his carrier pigeons by which he relays the score through the air!

The champion baseball fan is two—Mr. and Mrs. John H. Legien, of Atlanta, Ga. Until two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Legien never missed a game. They could tell you the batting average of men in majors and minors, they talked box scores instead of neighborhood gossip at the breakfast table and on holidays went to the ball park instead of the picnic.

Then came tragedy—Mrs. Legien became ill. On recovery she found she would be practically an invalid for life. No more baseball games for the wife; husband went alone—and she had to wait until hours afterward to find out who won, for the Legiens live ten miles from the park.

Such a pathetic state of affairs could not endure. At the beginning of the present season Legien trained a flock of carrier pigeons. And now, every afternoon at the game this is what you see:

John H. Legien sitting in the grandstand with a box of nine homers. At the end of every inning—unless the game goes ten innings, in which case he holds pigeon number nine—he writes the score on a slip of paper, sticks it beneath the leg-rings of the bird and lets him fly. High above the diamond the homer circles and then—bang!—he is off on a dead line to the south. Four minutes later Mrs. Legien, resting on her front porch, takes the fluttering bird from her shoulder and puts it in its box.

But first she extracts that bit of paper from the leg-ring.

"Hurrah," she whispers, "2 to 1 in the seventh!"

MANY TENNIS STARS IN STATE TOURNEY

Country Club Event Will Attract Leaders from Several States.

Some of the foremost tennis stars of Indiana and surrounding states will participate in the state tennis tournament to be held at the Country Club, August 20 to 25. The fact that the meet is open to all amateurs, whether residents of Indiana or not, assures some of the best talent of the middle west.

Although there will be no prizes or cups this year, the winners will be given Red Cross certificates, and the tourney will have all the features of former years. Dr. Charles D. Humes, of Indianapolis, will referee the matches. A large number of entries have already been received by F. E. Hoffmann, chairman. The entry list closes at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

Cy Falkenberg pitching the second game for Indianapolis allowed five hits, which were responsible for Columbus making four runs. Brown had the Indians at his mercy in the first contest and was never in danger. Hasbrock, the Columbus first baseman, was recalled by the Chicago White Sox.

FAST TIME EXPECTED AT RANDALL TODAY

Four Races Are on Program Featured by $3,000 Press Stake.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—With the track in good condition today it is expected some fast time will be made on the North Randall track and some new season records for the Grand circuit established.

Four races, two with fields above the average, are on the program, the principal event being the $3,000 press stake for 2:17 trotters. Of the six starters in this race, Royal Mac will probably be the favorite.

In the 2:10 pace with a purse of $1,000 Butte Hale is looked upon as a strong chance owing to his great showing at Columbus last week.

The 2:15 trot, for a purse of $1,000 has Birtand as a slight favorite over the others. Jay Mack seems to have the call in the 2:19 pace, also for a $1,000 purse.

On account of a heavy downpour of rain in the morning the time for the races yesterday was slow. The Woodman, unbeaten trotter of the 1917 season, and favorite for the 2:09 trot, was defeated by Miss Perfection.

Ruth Mainstreet was the only favorite to win during the afternoon's racing, winning the three-year-old trotting stake. In the 2:07 pace, The Savoy, the favorite, was beaten by Day Spring, and Peter G., favorite in the 2:17 pace, was defeated by Spy Direct, piloted by Geers.

INDIANA-OHIO GAME AROUSING INTEREST

May Run Excursion for Big Match at Indianapolis November 3.

Fort Wayne alumni and former students of Indiana and Ohio state universities are already making preparations for the football game at Indianapolis on Nov. 3 between Indiana and Ohio state. G. A. Smiley, an alumnus of Indiana university, is arousing interest here in the big game and is organizing the alumni of the city for a big demonstration at Indianapolis on that day.

If enough from this city signify their intentions of attending the game it is probable that a special car will be chartered for the trip. Posters will be distributed in the city giving information in regard to the game.

Both Ohio and Indiana will continue football this year despite the fact that the war has taken away many of the star performers of both teams, and the game at Indianapolis is expected to attract an enormous crowd.

Speaker will be able to play in few days

Famous Cleveland Fielder Will Not Be Out of Game Long.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—Tris Speaker, Cleveland's famous center fielder, who was knocked unconscious by a pitched ball in the eighth inning of yesterday's second game and forced to retire, will be able to play again within a few days, according to Dr. H. M. Castle, the club physician.

Speaker was hit by the first ball pitched by Danforth who relieved E. J. Fisher in the eighth inning. Danforth's first pitch was a speedy ball and it struck Speaker just above the right temple. Speaker was knocked unconscious, but recovered in a few minutes and started for first base, but was persuaded to go to the bench. Roth will probably play center field today.

FIRST AMERICAN GIRL TO JOIN RUSS WOMEN'S DEATH REGIMENT

Frances Gifford

BY IDAH M'GLONE GIBSON.

New York, Aug. 15.—An American girl is going to Russia to join the Russian women's "Regiment of Death."

She is Frances Gifford, 21, an artist well known among New York's colony of writers and painters.

She met me at the top of the two flights of stairs over the stable in Greenwich village, where she has her studio. It was very hot, and the odor of horses as well as art permeated the atmosphere. She is a small blond girl, with great blue eyes that look into yours so earnestly that you feel she has thought a great deal on the subject of how she should do her bit in making the world safe for peace, as she insists.

She had evidently just moved into this studio, and we sat among the debris of household furniture, and talked over the Russian situation, of which she has evidently been a deep student.

"Why do you want to go to Russia to fight?" I asked.

"Because," she answered, "I shall be fighting for peace, and ultimate peace will come through Russia. By fighting by the side of those brave women I shall be fighting not to make the world safe for democracy, as it is called, but to make the world safe for peace."

"Do you think woman's place is in the fighting line?" I asked.

"Why not?" she answered. "Shall not women as well as men make the world safe for the children that come after?"

"That is just the point. What will be the effect on their children if women take an active part in war?"

"None," she said. "Before and after bearing children, a woman is capable of military duty. Women have demonstrated they can endure physical hardships as well as men. They are quite as brave when facing any danger of the body or soul."

"Why don't you try to go in some capacity for America?" I asked.

"Because I do not consider America is helping the coming of peace; to me, the only way that peace can come is through Russia."

As she said this, her great blue eyes became suffused with tears, but they did not fall. It was then I asked her how old she was. And she answered: "Twenty-one."

"Aren't you rather young to decide this question for yourself in this way?"

She looked at me in surprise.

"The American army," she said, "is taking many boys of 17, 18 and 19, and they begin to draft them at 21. It has been always said that a girl is older at that age than a boy. It seems to me that that answers your question."

Miss Gifford's childish appearance is contradicted by her brilliant mind. In her blue linen "middy" suit, with its white linen collar and cuffs and her bobbed hair, she looked like a high school girl. But she speaks with the authority and poise of a woman of 30. She will probably be in the Russian ranks in October, as she has made all arrangements to that end.

Russia furnished the first as well as the latest women's fighting legions mentioned in history. The Amazons, of whom Herodotus wrote and con-

Summer Complaint.

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intensely. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."—Advertisement.

IN DEATH SAVES GIRL BATHER AS HE PROMISED HER TO DO

Staff Special:

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 14.—"Don't you worry, little girl. Before you go down I'll go down myself."

That pledge from Dennis McCarthy, a life-long friend of the family, took Mrs. Betty Shaffer, slender and 20, into the water.

McCarthy's lifeless body, holding the girl up to safety, took her from death's grip and fulfilled his promise.

"He shook hands with me as he promised to drown to save me if necessary," said Mrs. Shaffer. "I am a poor swimmer, and afraid, but his handclasp banished all my fear."

"And that is the last I remember of Dennis McCarthy's courage until this: 'I stand on his shoulders. His feet are on the ground. My head is above the water. I am safe. Men are coming to take me out.'"

"But—the current swings past my ankles. And as it swings it moves something back and forth against them, something that bobs first against one ankle and then against the other—Dennis McCarthy's lifeless head, swayed on his shoulders by the flowing water!"

McCarthy and Mrs. Shaffer had started out of their depth to help rescue another girl. They got into a swift current.

"Put your arms around my neck," said McCarthy. Her body was too heavy. He began to sink.

"I could feel him slipping lower and lower," Mrs. Shaffer told afterward. "But he kept hold of me and held me up."

"His hands were at my waist, then at my knees, then at my ankles. He put my feet on his shoulders. It seemed many minutes that I stood there, knowing he was dying, and saving me."

"And—I could tell from the feel of it when there was no longer any life in his tossing head."

Mrs. Betty Shaffer and Dennis McCarthy who, even after his death, saved her from drowning.

Branch Rickey Came to Baseball to Educate Himself --and He Still Is at It.

born in jeans most of his young life. He got what education the district school could give. He worked on the farm.

Rickey was 18 when he got through with the district school. He at once obtained employment teaching another school in the neighborhood. He got $40 a month for seven months a year teaching that school. He got board and $20 a month working on the farm for the other five months. Thus Rickey's gross income for the first year of work was $380. He paid his own board while he was teaching school.

The boy was wild to go to college. The family funds would not endure the strain. So Rickey got the books which covered the curriculum of the freshman year at Ohio Wesleyan and studied as best he could.

When the summer vacation came around, some of the neighbor boys who had been to college returned to their homes. They brought with them their learning and their books. When Rickey heard the young fellows talk of what they had learned and when he saw the Tutoring Saved Career.

"Of course, I did not get paid while catching for my college. But the eligibility rules were not strong, particularly in those days, and I caught for the town teams, for which I was paid. It was not much—$2, $3, $4. When I first got $5 for catching a game of baseball I felt that I had attained the heights of affluence."

"During the summer of my freshman year I got a regular job catching on a semiprofessional team. That was $50 a month, real money. I could make $300 playing baseball during the summer then. My college career was assured."

Rickey had a hard time during his sophomore year. I was in his office the other day when he got a call on the telephone.

"Hello! Hello, Bill!" he cried, gladly. "Sure, I know you. Knew you the moment you spoke. How could I ever forget you? You are coming to see me, aren't

If he would play Sunday ball. His earning capacity was small at the time. He got from $15 to $175 a month for four and one-half months in the year. That means that his total income from baseball was from $515 to $380. Rickey had to live narrowly to keep within his income.

I have always noticed that early poverty, involuntary economy, hardens and tempers the mettle of man. If I was to lay down a precept for "getting along" for a young man, I would prescribe that he should be obliged to earn his own livelihood, that it should be a maverick one, that he should be obliged, willingly or unwillingly, to live within it, and that he should go to college at the same time.

The best and most successful men I have ever known earned their own way through college and lived always within the meager incomes they derived from the odd jobs. The boys who go through college on the money supplied them by parents never do as well as the boys who earn their way through college. That phenomenon is easily explained. The boy who earns his way through college is ambitious to learn. The hardships of his

I have heard many a scion whose way has been liberally defrayed by generous parents, regret that he was about to leave college "just when he was beginning to appreciate it." I have heard many a senior, who hated college in his freshman and junior years, wish that he had his college life to live over again. College days are unquestionably the best days of any man's life. All wise boys, and some who are not so wise, begin to appreciate their college days just when they are about done. So with all life, I think. We appreciate nothing until we have lost or are about to lose it. It is one of the many tragedies of human nature.

The boy who has to work his way through college wants to get done as quickly as possible. There is none of the drowsy far niente in his busy day of chore doing and studying. He has lived narrowly, worked hard, dressed poorly, studied hard and worked like a bond slave. It is the life beyond the college, not the college, that has charms for him. Oxford's walls have charms for the man who can afford to be a valetudinarian. They have none for the lad who must mouth to be possessed of these things. There never was a harder fighter in a baseball game than Rickey. Yet nobody ever heard a foul word from his mouth. His favorite curse word is "Judas Priest."

He played baseball in a day when players were rough and more trooperish than now. But Rickey's words and passion were quite unnecessary to Rickey. He had a loud voice and untold energy, and he employed both to the fullest extent.

Rickey was receiving $3200 from the St. Louis club when his manager, McAlister, traded him to New York. McAlister liked Rickey, but he knew that the boy had an ambition to be a lawyer and was fearful that some day Rickey would retire from baseball and leave his team without his services.

Rickey played for two years with New York. He was 28 years old when he found himself in a position to study law. He obtained the position of baseball coach at the University of Michigan and took up law at that college. He quit the New York baseball club, though his salary as coach at Michigan was less than one-half of his salary as a player at New York.

Rickey spent four years coaching and studying law at Michigan. He worked so hard, put so much of himself into his occupation and into his studies, that he found himself stripped of health when he got his diploma. He was obliged to spend two years in the West recuperating his health. He had married and children had been born to him in the meanwhile. When he recovered his health, he was 32 years old, a husband, a father, and broke after twelve years of the hardest sort of labor. He possessed an education, a trained mind and knowledge of two professions, baseball and law.

So far he has not made any use of his legal training. But study of law trained his mind so that he is undoubtedly the best mind in baseball today. The trained mind, combined with his professional knowledge of baseball, makes Rickey worth $15,000 a year to his employers. That is more money than a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States receives.

Rickey was poor, so far as money goes, in 1913. He had recovered his health and he set about recouping his fortunes. The first thing that came to his hand was a position as scout, or promoter of young players, for the St. Louis American League baseball club, a team for which he had played five years before. Robert Lee Hedges, owner of the club, scarce knew Rickey as a player. Hedges was impressed by the energy and trained mind of the young lawyer. He gave him a position as scout and privately resolved to promote him to the position of president and executive officer of the club. This position would have suited Rickey exactly.

Fortune, however, did not favor Rickey. There has been little luck in the life "getting along" of this young man. He had the luck of being born and reared poor. That was all. He lost his first big chance to succeed in the remunerative profession of baseball because he would not sacrifice his religious principles to expediency. He had sacrificed his baseball success to study law. Ill-health fell upon him.

Rickey seemed to have reached the position he desired with that of executive officer of a baseball club in 1913. Then George Stovall, manager of the St. Louis team, got into disfavor with spectators and league officials. It was necessary that Mr. Hedges should secure a manager. Rickey was the man at hand. Against his will, Rickey was obliged to assume the position of field manager of a baseball team.

He managed the St. Louis team during part of 1913 and all of 1914 and 1915. Conditions did not permit him to attain great fame as a manager, but he set a new fashion in training players and in securing young men for his team. He proved himself to be a master judge of young players.

Again, when it seemed that Rickey would attain to the postponed presidency and executive management of a baseball club, fate fell against him. His employer, Mr. Hedges, sold his interests in the club to St. Louis people. These gentlemen had owned the St. Louis Federal League club and had a manager of their own, Fielder Alanson Jones, a man of great repute. Then Rickey was quite unknown to them. They could not very well choose him to be executive manager of properties which had cost them $700,000. The best they could offer him was the position of office or business manager. This carried with it a salary one-third less than the salary Rickey had been receiving as manager of the club. He was obliged to accept it at the time.

It seemed that fate had been unkind to Rickey. He felt so himself. Yet such are the freaks of fate that it turned out to be the best thing that could possibly have occurred to the young man.

So far Rickey had been known only as a baseball manager. In so much as the best he had ever done was to finish fifth, then drop to seventh place, his success was far from assured. His legal and oratorical abilities had been allowed to lie dormant and unsuspected even by him.

When Rickey became business manager of the St. Louis team he was designated to attend luncheons and dinners given the players by the commercial bodies of St. Louis. Among other bodies the St. Louis Business Men's League, now the Chamber of Commerce, composed of the big and little business men of the city, entertained the club at luncheon. Rickey responded to speeches complimenting the players. His speech on "Baseball as an Aid to Business" made an impression on his audience. Rickey's fame was established.

Ability to think and to forcibly express his thoughts is a great asset to a young man. Rickey possesses it in the highest degree. He is a master of argument. He drives home his points with hammer blows. He is earnest, he believes what he says, he knows what he is talking about. His voice is not very mellifluous, his gestures are not graceful, he is not a master of oratory in the fullest sense, but he can make a most convincing argument. Of all orators, Daniel O'Connell, the Irish patriot of the middle nineteenth century, has been accounted the greatest, because he could control his audience, make it laugh or cry, think or give way to passion, just as he pleased. He is, however, superb in logical argument. He has energy and he drives home his points with terrific force. Addressing cool American business men is quite another thing than addressing wild, impulsive Irishmen. I must say that I have never heard a more convincing pleader than Branch Rickey.

The Gentle Art of "Getting Along" Could Have No Better Example Than in Case of $15,000-a-Year President of St. Louis Cardinal Club.

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

GETTING along" is the important thing in life as we know it. Let the philosophers sneer as they may, boys and girls, men and women of any account want to "do well," to "get along." Not necessary to become rich, but to be comfortable, to pay their debts, support their children, have a little money in the bank to help a distressed friend if necessary, to be independent, to be self-respecting.

I know that William J. Locke and other authors have preached the gospel of "Oh, what does it matter?" etc. But I have noticed that the popular "beloved vagabond" is mostly a "bum," a "good fellow," who simply borrows money from all his friends—"dimes them to death," as they say.

I have had more than one good friend, the lovable, careless, devil-may-care "beloved vagabond," who, mostly, was a traitor to mother, sister, wife and child, the genial, irresponsible, who, possessed by the liquor lust more than by the wanderlust, quits his responsibilities every now and then, goes on a big drunk and "touches" every one he can reach.

This is the gentleman who has no sense of the value of money—the fellow who rails at the man who saves a dollar. This is the so-called "good fellow," the test of goodfellowship being the length of time he could stand up against a bar and drink the whiskey some other fellows bought him.

I have never been a money saver, but I have had a dime to lend and a dime to spend for twenty-five years now.

I have often wondered why nine of every ten so-called "good fellows" are really macers and "deadbeats."

That's why I have a large respect for my antithesis, the "man who gets along."

That's why I have a large respect for Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis National League baseball club. He was a "bone poor" boy. He is not a bad fellow. He made up his mind to "get along." He is "getting along."

Rickey at 38 is a man of mark. Fifteen years ago he left the farm at Lucasville, Ohio, with $70, proceeds of his own labor, in his pocket—his worldly goods, like the wardrobe of Hon. Richard Dowling, wrapped up in his red pocket handkerchief.

In that fifteen years, a short space of time, Rickey took a college course, a post-graduate course in law, became a lawyer, an amateur baseball player, coach of a college baseball team, a professional baseball player, a minor league baseball player, a major league baseball player, a scout for a major league team, manager of a major league club and president of a major league baseball club at a salary of $15,000 a year, an interest in the club, an interest in the profits of the club and a chance to purchase the $500,000 property under certain conditions.

Rickey did all this by himself. No one to help him. During his period of coming up he married, lost two years through illness, had to quit a $4000-a-year job because his arm went weak, and met with other impediments. He assisted his parents, two young brothers and scores of boys as he went along.

Of New England Stock.

There may be certain things about Branch Rickey, college man, baseball player and baseball manager, that I do not care about. He is a trifle too sober, too grim, for my dearest loving. He is a trifle too good, too religious, too strict, too Puritanical to be as lovable as some of the "beloved vagabonds" I have met. Yet Rickey has done pretty close my idea of what a young American should do. He has "got along" honestly, done well and has had a grand, good time doing it.

Although Rickey was born on an Ohio farm, he is of New England stock. That explains the "getting along." New Englanders have the gift of long sight. They see ahead. However, this Ohio farm family was poor. New Englanders often are poor for a generation. Rickey la-

Latin, Greek, French, German and scientific books they had, he almost died of chagrin.

"My soul burned to learn the things these boys were learning, almost against their will," said Rickey. "I was green with envy, red-rav with disappointment. I determined to go to college at any cost."

Mr. Rickey, Sr., did not want his boy to go to college then. He was sure that he could get the boy a more lucrative school next term. Young Rickey made up his mind. He was going to college.

So he drew his $70 out of the bank, packed his clothes in his pocket handkerchief, and went.

It was some grind. Rickey had to depend upon himself. His father had a growing family at home. He was a loving father, but he had children less able to take care of themselves than his oldest son. Then the boy did not want any help. All he wanted was to be allowed to help himself.

He had to do some heavy helping. Seventy dollars did not go very far even in a freshwater college fifteen years ago. Rickey had to have tuition fees, money for books, money for board, clothes, etc. So Rickey did chores, blacked stoves, split wood, carried horses and mules, served as first lord of the bedchamber to same, waited on table, drove a hack, tutored students richer and more backward than himself, ran messages, tended store, served as telegraph lineman, night watchman, pressed wearing apparel, sold books and did a thousand and one odd jobs to help pay his way through college.

And at the same time he found leisure during which to become a great baseball player. There is a lot of fun to be found playing ball.

"I took up baseball to make money to put me through college," said Rickey. "That is why I became a catcher."

There were two positions which I noticed were always paid—pitcher and catcher. In the small towns they will have seven unpaid players and two paid players. The paid players are the pitcher and the catcher. I did not have enough speed to be a good pitcher. Then the boys did not like catching. They said that it was too much like work. I did not mind the work. I needed the money. That is why I became a catcher. I had played a little ball when I was on the farm, but never enough to do me any good. I began my baseball career in college.

you? I'll be awfully glad to see you. Come right out. I am waiting for you."

"That," explained Rickey, "is a man whom I tutored during my sophomore year. Gee, he did a lot for me. I made about $30 teaching him. Had it not been for that $30 I never could have got through the semester."

When he was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan, Rickey went out and played professional ball. He was with independent teams in Ohio, Illinois and Iowa for one year. Then he obtained a regular engagement in the Texas League. After two years there he was given a chance at Cincinnati. Being of a religious turn of mind, he refused to play on Sundays.

"If you are too good to play on Sundays you are too good to play on Mondays," said Joe Kelley, who was manager of the Cincinnati club. So he gave Rickey his release. Rickey went back to the Texas League. There was a huge difference in the salary he would have got had he stayed at Cincinnati and the salary he got in Dallas. Which shows that while Rickey was wildly eager to "get along," he was not sacrificing principle to expediency.

All through his baseball career he played with teams which played, as all teams do, baseball on Sunday. There never was a time when Rickey could not have got from $25 to $75 more each month condition spur him to extra exertions that he may get through college as quickly as possible and begin to earn enough to live more generously.

The Incentive Lacking.

The boy whose way is paid through college by his parents has no such incentive to labor. That his family can pay his way through college means that there are means at home. Why, then, should son be in any great hurry to get through the best years of his life—college years?

pay for his education with his blood.

Ambitious as he was to "get along," Rickey did not sacrifice his religious principles that he might achieve success. He succeeded just the same.

After two years with the Dallas baseball team Rickey went to the St. Louis Browns. There he received for the first time in his life—and he was 24 years old—a living wage, $1500 a season. He made a success of baseball. He was a good catcher, a good hitter and an energetic player. They talk about "pep" and fight and grit and claim that a man must be foul of

of the occasion at 8:30 p. m., and also by the added attraction of a balloon ascension which will be made at 4:30 p. m.

The exhibits had all been completed Wednesday morning, together with the list of all the names of the persons making entries, and plans finished for the various contests.

Senator Watson was inclined when first notified and asked to speak at the patriotic demonstration this evening not to take the proposition seriously because of the name of the organization, which appealed to him evidently as a bit of humorous play and it was not until a few days ago that the local committee found out what Senator Watson's attitude was and he was then prevailed upon to take the matter seriously.

As a result he will arrive at 5:15 on the Pennsylvania, being met by a committee of the Potato Patch Patriots and escorted to the Anthony hotel.

Roy Campbell of Company E, Indiana national guard, received his equipment here today and will make a balloon flight which will lend attraction to the series of entertainments. Campbell is said to be a balloonist of some experience and has been making ascensions in various parts of the state. He makes the usual parachute drop at a certain height which it is promised will furnish the usual thrill.

Nothing has been overlooked to make the celebration a gala day. Plenty of entertainment has been promised by members of the committee in charge who have worked hard in preparing the schedule of events. The band concert will start at 7:30 p. m. and will be followed by the speaking program.

No charge will be made for anything connected with the program and it is expected that one of the largest crowds ever to attend a demonstration of the kind will be on hand. Arrangements have been made with the traction company to handle the people and plenty of cars are assured going and coming from the park.

The judges in the potato show will be Michael Sheehan, E. M. Trick and Luke Durnell. The judges for the baby show have all been picked from those who ought to know, no men having been selected. They are: Mrs. Frank Bohn, Mrs. E. M. Van Buskirk, and Mrs. J. F. O'Connor.

Names of Exhibitors.

The names of those who have entered potato exhibits follow: Mrs. J. Schaefer, 123 East Williams; Cal Schaefer, 123 East Williams; Miss W. Manok, 123 East Williams; E. F. PLEAS DEMAND advances after they had claimed exemption. These cases must be certified to the district board, which will pass upon them. The time for filing the exemptions expired before the advances was brought in. Just what the decision in these cases will be is not known.

Attention was also called, in viewing the exemption papers, that a man who has been married for some time and who is a man of reputed wealth, filed claim for exemption on the ground that his wife depended solely upon his daily work for support.

Other slackers.

In addition to these so-called slackers, Fort Wayne has a different variety of this specie of men who are prone to show their "yellow streaks." Of 1,526 men who were called for examination in the three city districts, over one hundred and fifty failed to put in their appearance. In this number, of course, are included a small percentage of men who had already joined the colors. Others, however, will be found by federal authorities and without further consideration or examination will be taken into the conscript ranks.

It was ascertained late Wednesday afternoon that only fifty more men were needed in the city to complete the quota of men. More than this number will be gotten from those who filed exemption claims that will be rejected by the boards. This will mean that perhaps a small number of those who passed and valued exemption will get out from under the first draft.

southwest and encloses the suburbs of St. Laurence and St. Enille.

The British guns had been pounding for days at Hill 70, which the Germans considered impregnable. The infantry attack began at 4:25 o'clock this morning. The capture of Hill 70 ranks in importance with the biggest military operations of this year. It was the last dominating position in this section, which remained in the hands of the Germans and from it a wide territory can be controlled.

ATTACK ON WIDE FRONT.

London, Aug. 15.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's forces attacked the German positions along a wide front early this morning from Lens to the northeast of Loos. The official statement says the British are making progress satisfactorily.

General Haig reports that the British troops have carried the German first line at all points of the front attack.

GETS BACK TO GERMANY.

Amsterdam, Aug. 15.—Naval Lieutenant Otto Sberik, one of the few remaining survivors of the German Pacific squadron which was defeated by the British off the Falkland islands in December of 1914, has succeeded in returning to Germany, according to the Zeitung of Eisleben, Saxony. The lieutenant's journey from South America occupied eight months and was accompanied by great difficulties. On arriving in Germany he immediately rejoined the navy.

SIX KILLED IN BARCELONA.

Paris, Aug. 15.—Six persons were killed and nine others were wounded when strikers clashed yesterday with soldiers at Barcelona, according to a statement issued by the Spanish captain-general and received here by the Petit Parisien.

A dispatch to the Temps from Madrid says there was a certain agitation in various quarters of the city yesterday. Crowds gathered continually and were dispersed by civil guards. Police and soldiers massed in various parts of the capital. Reports from Catalonia are that the strikers have not opposed energetically those who are remaining at work.

Premier Dato last night conferred with King Alfonso, who was given details on the general situation.

THE MARKETS

FURTHER DECLINE ON CORN AND WHEAT MARK

Receipt of New Grain Having Depressing Effect on Prices.

Corn and wheat, which began a decline the early part of the week, are still on the down grade, and there is every evidence of a further depression on the local markets. The influx of the new wheat is given as the cause for the decline in that market. Local millers quoted a price of $2.05 and $2.08 per bushel for this grain Wednesday morning.

Corn, which reached the mark of $1.75 on the city scales Tuesday, dropped still more Wednesday morning, one load being weighed, selling at $1.70 per bushel.

The new hay market remained practically steady, twelve loads which were weighed at the city scales selling for $11 to $12 per ton. Two loads of old hay brought $15.

Oats also remained steady, four loads on the city scales selling for 62 and 65 cents per bushel.

CAMOUFLAGE.

"Camouflage" means, as Webster wouldn't put it, to make a thing look like what it ain't.

They're doing it in the rumple across the big swallow to give the kulser's goats the wrong steer. Frinstance, a big gun is decorated up to look harmless, like a fella slingin' harsh words and dealing a couple of uppercuts to an enemy over the phone. Do you get us?

Camouflage is a deceive stuff. It's something, but it's made to appear like something else. It's right handed, but it listens left handed. Again frinstance, some fellas camouflage their flivvers with fancy stuff to make them look like regular autos.

Now, Norman, tomorrow we start in with some ideas how this camouflage stunt works in our everyday turns. Don't forget tomorrow. Better order from your newswriters now.

The walrus or "sea horse" of the old navigators are the strangest and most grotesque of all sea mammals. Their large rugged heads, armed with two long ivory tusks, and their huge swollen bodies, covered with hairless, wrinkled and warty skin, give them a formidable appearance unlike that of any other mammal. They are much larger than most seals, the old males weighing from 2,000 to 3,000 pounds and the females about two-thirds as much. Walrus show great devotion and disregard of their own safety in defending their young.

The Panama canal was opened to navigation on August 15, 1914. The first ship to pass through was the United States government steamship Acacia. The cost of constructing the canal is officially estimated at $325,201,000, to which should be added $50,000,000 paid to the French Canal company and to the republic of Panama for property and franchises.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

FINED BECAUSE HIS FRIENDS USED AUTO

Henry St. Clair, Colored, Made to Pay $25 and Costs by Judge Kerr

Ruling that because the defendant accepted five dollars from his friends for the use of an automobile Saturday night was an offense against the city ordinance operating a motor vehicle for profit, Judge Waveland Kerr, of the city court, fined Henry St. Clair, colored, twenty-five dollars and costs in the city court Wednesday morning.

It was brought out in the trial that St. Clair gave another colored man permission to use his Ford touring car last Saturday night to take some of his friends to a dance in the Rolling Mill district and back. The boys appreciated the favor and Sunday gave St. Clair five dollars, which they had raised among themselves.

In connection with this evidence it was shown that Officer Collins saw a lady talking to St. Clair Tuesday evening. It was stated that the lady, whom St. Clair said he knew, asked the latter to take her to her home. It was at this point that the arrest was made.

St. Clair also testified that he had at divers times taken some of his friends on fishing trips along the river and that the boys had chipped in and paid for the gasoline, oil and wear on the machine.

On this evidence Judge Kerr ruled that an offense had been committed and imposed the fine.

Twenty Years Old. "Twenty years old. Born in 1897," has become a familiar phrase in police court since the time of grace for registration has elapsed. Wednesday morning Sidney Moleman and Gee Smith, who stated they were from Decatur, Ill., appeared in court charged with truancy. Both looked to be of conscription age, but both stated they were but twenty years of age. An investigation will be made and in the meantime they will remain in jail until August 22 under a $200 bail.

Other Police Court Notes. G. W. Sickles, who said he was a stranger in town, was fined $5 and costs for parking his automobile near a water plug.

George Gillespie was ordered held under a bond of $100 until August 20. He is charged with child neglect.

William Wallace was mistreating his family Tuesday and Wednesday morning. He was fined $10 and costs and sentenced for thirty days on the Allen county roads. His wife said she did not care to live with him any more and that she could earn a living for herself and eight children.

For the fifth time in the past few months Tony Sandy faced the city court on a charge of drunkenness. He drew a fine of $15 and costs and was sentenced for thirty days to the Allen county roads.

Posey Young, who said he was twelve years old and who was charged with petit larceny was certified to the juvenile court.

Other drunks were disposed of as follows: John Ferguson, $5 and costs; Jim Brown, $100 and ordered held until August 21; John Kennedy was let go, John Kelly also allowed to go.

William Durr was fined $5 and costs on the charge of malicious trespass. He was arrested by Officer George L. Heller for attempting to force an entrance to a residence on Wells street at an early hour Tuesday morning.

Belt Kodak Cases—Parrot's, LOVES HER DOG.

Mrs. Moran Would Not Kill Dog After Ordered to Do So.

Mrs. Moran, who formerly lived at 1223 East Lewis street, has demonstrated that she loves her little pet dog. It is said that the dog bit the son of Mrs. Katie Kelley, of 1227 East Lewis street and that she was served with an order to kill the canine. She is alleged to have disregarded the order and will face the city court Thursday morning.

The August Sale of Furs

A Fashion Event with Special Pricing Its Keynote!

Why can we sell Furs for less in August?

In every line of activity there are two classes of buyers—those who buy when the need overtakes them, who generally pay full market price or more, and those who buy anticipating future needs, who are in a position to dictate terms within a fair and honest range.

To this latter class this store belongs. To this latter class many of its customers belong, and to this may we ascribe the many advantages all patrons of this store find here at all times—but particularly here in August in this sale of Furs.

The early purchases of pelts, after expert selection of skins made certain of quality, the contracts we let with manufacturing furriers for work to be done, when otherwise their work rooms would be inactive, bring about low fur prices in advance of the usual season and bring the new styles in Furs early, even at this lower schedule.

For Women Who Serve Their Country By Doing Men's Work

With women standing ready to fill places of men who have answered the Country's call, comes the demand for suitable clothing. The feminine dress must be laid aside, and sturdier garments, allowing utmost freedom of movement, must be supplied.

Here are stoutly made Overalls of serviceable khaki in many models, to suit every demand. Some are complete, with blouse and trousers attached; others have bibs, and there is another style with strap over the shoulders.

We are showing the best line of these.

No-Tear Hose Supporters

Who hasn't experienced the vexation of having a brand new pair of Silk Stockings ruined by the garter clasp?

No-Tear Hose Supporters prevent this, the soft, flat rubber disc protecting the hose from the metal clasp. Once snapped on the garter, these No-Tears need never be removed. Set of six costs only 15c—and they save their cost many times over.

New! The Official Uniform for Housewives

At last the American housewife has come into her own! She is now universally recognized as one of the most vital factors in the welfare of the world, and particularly in the conduct of our Food Administration.

It is possible to distinguish members of every branch of woman's service through their uniforms, as for instance, the Red Cross, the League for Woman's Service, etc., but how can one identify a woman member of the United States Food Administration? She wears no uniform which would signify the branch of the service to which she belongs or in which manner she is doing her patriotic bit. But that is all changed now, for a clever designer has evolved the

"Official Food Service Uniform"

This is a natty, neat affair, made in official grey-blue chambray. The long, round collar, the detachable cuffs and the cap are of white pique. The uniform is double-breasted and has two slits through which the belt is drawn. The cuffs are fastened with large pearl buttons. Each Official Uniform has two Shields of Service—one on the left sleeve and the other on the cap. The Uniform can be worn either as a dress or over another garment.
